Regional Schools to Enter Coming Year with Board and Superintendent in Opposite Camps

A school board unanimous in its opposition to the tenured superintendent, a superintendent cheerfully making plans for the coming school year. The next few months should be interesting.

Early this fall, superintendent and school board will meet with representatives of the New Jersey School Boards Association to see whether their differences can be resolved. One meeting has already been held. Representatives chosen by the N.J.S.B.A. have talked with individual board members, and will also confer with Superintendent Philip McPherson. According to Winthrop Pike, board president, a decision will be made after the first two meetings on whether to call the whole thing off, or whether to hold more meetings, and if so, what kind.

The meetings were proposed by the N.J.S.B.A., which wrote to the Princeton board asking if its good offices could be used to bring board and superintendent closer together.

"We decided to see what they have to offer," Mr. Pike says. "I think the outcome could be anything in either direction. I have no fixed ideas about what the direction might be."

All parties have agreed not to talk publicly about the conferences with N.J.S.B.A. members. It remains to be seen whether there will be leaks.

Meanwhile, school opens Wednesday, September 3.

Asked how he could run the store with a nine-member board apparently solidly against him, Dr. McPherson said, "I don't feel I'll be working this coming year in the shadow of the problems of the past, and especially of the past spring. I honestly feel constructive about the things I have to do, and I'm looking forward to the meetings with the board and the N.J.S.B.A."

Dr. McPherson is particularly enthusiastic about work he's been doing with the board's policy committee and its chairman, Dietrich Meyerhofer.

"I'm rather optimistic we're making progress in improving our understandings of policies and what they are, and procedures and what they are, and how board and administrator can do business along the lines of certain rules," the superintendent says.

"I can see clear examples of where both board and administration need to change, and both recognize this need. By not having settled on a definition of 'policy,' we haven't had proper guidelines -- is the board too much into administration or not?"

"On the other side, it's clear to me there are ways the administration can do a better job of responding to the board's expressed need for a clearer idea of how policies are carried out. The board is concerned about how it happens, out there in the schools."

Both board president and superintendent are agreed on the importance of money in the months ahead.

Mr. Pike calls state aid, "semi-settled."

"We're getting about 80% of what we're supposed to get," he says. "The board has told Ron Novak (business administrator) to concentrate on what's needed for opening school, and wherever possible not to make commitments beyond December 31."

Staffing and declining enrollment are linked problems, Mr. Pike observes. Littlebrook school, for example, is down in population by several classrooms of kids, and what can be done with these teachers, many on tenure? Nobody knows yet what the effect of Princeton Community Village will be. Will the kids in that new project be new -- from towns outside Princeton -- or will they simply be kids moving from another part of town?

"That's a real guessing game," Mr. Pike observes. He adds that the drop in Littlebrook enrollment reflects the

FIRST FAMILIES OF PCH: Three of the first families to move into Princeton Community Village stand outside one of the units, although the great news in town is that these families after almost seven years of waiting, are now inside the units. Township Mayor Jay Bleiman (far left) greets Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Sullivan and Charles and Richard (Richard is Number 32, as you can see from his T-shirt). Next is Mrs. Millie McAllister with her son David, and daughter Amy, and far right, Mrs. Gladys Jefferson. In white shirt and dark glasses, is William L. Johnston, acting executive director of the New Jersey Housing Finance Agency, godfather to the Princeton Community Village project.

As Families Begin Moving into PCH Village, It's, "Hey, I Used to Know You! Remember..."

Families are finally moving in, at Princeton Community Village.

Exactly eight years ago — in August, 1967 — three Princeton churches agreed to serve as the first sponsors of a non-profit corporation whose purpose would be to construct housing for middle-income and low-income families in Princeton under a new state law.

On August 7 of this year — eight years after that initial step — Dennis Sullivan, his wife and two children moved into 20 Tupelo Row in Princeton Community Village. They were the first arrivals.

The 249-unit project, whose "landlord" is Princeton Community Housing, Inc., the non-profit corporation that grew from that three-member nucleus, is located off North Harrison Street and Bunn Drive, in Princeton Township.

Some half-dozen families are already settled — more or less — picking their way around bulldozers and workmen still busy on the remaining duplex units and the five-story, one-bedroom apartment building. It's all pretty raw and undeveloped still, but grass has been planted, the rough places made plain, and most of all, the leases signed and door-keys distributed.

Slice of Life. Joining the Sullivans last week for newspaper pictures were two of the other new families, and whether by design or accident these three families symbolize precisely what Princeton Community Village is all about. Besides the Sullivans, the press met Mrs. Millie Trani McAllister and her two children and Mrs. Gladys Briscoe Jefferson and her two children.

Dennis Sullivan, Millie McAllister and Gladys Jefferson are all native-born Princetonians who work here in the community. Mr. Sullivan not only works in the community, but for it: he is a mechanic in the Township garage. Mrs. McAllister has been a psychiatric nurse at Princeton House, ever since the building opened, in 1971. Mrs. Jefferson is a secretary for E. Harvey Myers, architect-planner at 2½ Chambers Street, and was formerly a secretary at the University.

"Sullivan?" Mrs. McAllister asked suddenly, while pictures were being taken, "When I was a kid on John Street, we lived next to a Sullivan family. The grandparents were from Ireland, and mine were from Italy, and I think the father is Tom Sullivan and isn't he in the University athletic department?"

"Tom is my father," Mr. Sullivan told her.

Remember When? "I remember when your grandfather used to give you a ride in the water company truck," Mrs. McAllister laughed, "and I think your aunt is a receptionist in the Medical Group office, right?"

"Right." "My maiden name was Briscoe..." began Mrs. Jefferson.

"I went to school with your brother Carl," Mrs. McAllister said. "We were in the same class at Princeton High."

Before this, young Amy McAllister had peered out her second-floor bedroom window and noticed someone familiar...

"Hey, Laurie! You gonna live here?"

Laurie Jefferson, 10, and Amy McAllister, 10, are in the same upcoming fifth grade at St. Paul's. Laurie's sister Denna, 12, is in John Witherspoon Middle School and Amy's brother David, 9, is in the fourth grade at St. Paul's. The Sullivans are pre-

New School Year

Teachers are being transferred from one school to another in moves based on what the teacher has in the way of certification. For example, Home Ec. enrollment is down at the high school. One teacher was moved last year to part-time teaching at the Middle School in Home Ec. This year she will be teaching Middle School science, for which she is also certified.

"This is worrisome," Mr. Pike concedes.

Contracts in Force. Union contracts have rules about the ways transfers can be handled, and Mr. Pike says the leadership of the PREA - the teachers' union - has been most cooperative.

The schools, incidentally, may have to recruit someone from the outside as a high school physics teacher to replace Henry Munson, who died this summer.

On the question of staffing, Mr. Pike spoke of the way people in town seem to feel about granting tenure.

"Some people think tenure is at the discretion of the board, but this isn't so. We can't keep someone without giving tenure and if a person, an administrator, has tenure in more than one post, we may not have too much lee-way."

Tenure Opposed. The board president seconded a recent

Superintendent Philip McPherson
"I honestly feel constructive"

article in the New Jersey School Boards publication in which the author commented that tenure works against both sides in top administrative posts.

"If board members have an ax over their heads that a superintendent will get tenure in three years, they may get rid of him in one or two, before he's had a chance to accomplish anything," Mr. Pike observes. "If he had a five-year contract, he'd have a reasonable time to try some ideas before anything happened."

"Also, where a board is unanimously lacking in confidence in an administrator, tenure prevents you from taking the step the community seems to want and you'd like to take."

Dr. McPherson, meanwhile, is bustling ahead with plans and ideas.

"The budget will be even more important this year, and we must look very hard at alternatives. I don't think I'll recommend it, but you could save a lot of money in maintenance - stop weeding, let the bushes grow, let things go to seed."

"I won't recommend this, either, but we have librarians in each school, full-time music and art teachers, things that were added in the '50s because that's what Princeton wanted. How much would you save if you took these things out?"

"This isn't a game: it's important to do this. And maybe it means we'd stop spending wasteful time going over the same things, the same jazz year after year, like all the time we spent on pre-kindergarten."

Program Revised. The Wednesday Program will be different this year. Under this program, as revised, school will be dismissed at 1:30 p.m. for a group of Wednesdays during the year. The afternoon will be devoted, as before to staff development, a kind of professional shoring-up for teachers. Residents of the community are invited to join in the seminars, workshops and "classes".

Back in 1974...

Last year, TOWN TOPICS' Back-to-School issue carried an interview with Winthrop Pike, then as now, president of the Princeton Regional Board of Education.

"An era of good feeling seems to have set in between board and administration," the article said, "in contrast to the contentious confrontations of other years."

"We have a continuing amicable relationship with Superintendent McPherson," Mr. Pike said at that time. "There is not quite the polarization we once had, although perhaps the board is more critical. We've avoided the open breaks we've seen in towns around us. These are very destructive."

Any predictions on '76?

President Winthrop Pike
"The outcome could be anything"

"It's almost like course descriptions in a college catalogue," Dr. McPherson grins, "with a description of each 'course' and its purpose. Much more structured, in this sense, than before."

From last year's Curriculum Inventory, rough Grade K-8 guidelines have been blocked out in language arts, social studies, math, science. These broad outlines will serve for discussion on four October Wednesdays.

Negotiations will be in progress this year for every bargaining unit in the district, Dr. McPherson points out.

"These negotiations shouldn't be viewed negatively," he advises, "there are many ways they can be useful and help us improve the institution, perhaps by clarifying rules."

This year, the superintendent says, the secretary-clerks salary structure is the most serious problem facing negotiators. It's concerned with how secretaries are classified and how the hiring of outsiders relates to the salary structure.

"This has serious morale implications," he believes, "and it's very serious - if not THE most serious personnel problem we have."

The first school board meeting of the new year is Tuesday, September 2. The agenda will be announced next week.

For the coming school year -

- if education is indeed Mark Hopkins on one end of a log and a student on the other, in Princeton it's the school board on one end and the superintendent on the other. Process and result will most certainly be educational.

This is Princeton

For all three families, the move to the Village opens a new world. Mrs. Jefferson and her two pre-teen daughters had been living in a small unit off Franklin Terrace, across from the Medical Center. Mrs. McAllister was living in Lawrence Township, far from her job at Princeton House and from St. Paul's School.

Dennis Sullivan had been living on Leavitt Lane with his parents. In the course of his work as a mechanic in the Township garage, he damaged his back, and is now on leave recuperating from a July operation. Because of his medical problems he was given first priority treatment by the village and that's how he happened to be the first tenant to move in. He has been with the Township almost six years.

To be eligible for an apartment in Princeton Community Village, applicants must either live in Princeton, work here or be able to show that they were forced to move away by a shortage of housing.

Teachers, police, municipal employees, clerks - this is the broad range of tenants for whom the project was conceived. However, PCH, Inc. would like a mix of tenants reflecting the composition of the entire community, at its upper-middle as well as lower income ranges.

Committee on Long-Range Planning for Schools Expresses Regret Over Lack of Implementation of Recommendations It Made in 1970

"There is unanimous disappointment -- on the part of everyone on the long-range committee I've talked to -- that there was no major implementation of what we recommended."

William K. Selden, chairman of the Citizens' Advisory Committee for Long-range Planning of the Princeton schools, recalled this week that committee members issued their interim report five years ago this fall. It was not substantially different from the final report the following spring.

"But I'm not bitter -- I'm not bitter," he said smilingly.

The one implementation he could recall was moving the Middle School to the John Witherspoon building. The report also recommended alternative approaches to learning; Princeton High's Learning Community has been instituted since that recommendation.

Mr. Selden observed that, although the committee suggested the school board use the report as a reference for things to be done, and compile lists to show progress, this was never done.

A member of the school board at that time has referred to the appointment of the citizens' committee as simply a "political" move.

"Brushed Aside." Mr. Selden is especially disappointed that recommendations about tenure and renovating the high school weren't followed.

"In regard to high school renovation," he recalls, "we intentionally outlined a time-frame and methods of procedure so that renovations could be made at minimum cost. This is the chief way in which the report was brushed aside."

"Although our committee had already made recommendations relative to building a new school or renovating the old, the board went ahead and hired an engineering firm to give an opinion on the question. This threw the whole schedule off."

EDUCATOR-GARDENER: Training, fertilizing, watching seedlings grow; a gardener's life is like an educator's. William Selden, head of the former long-range planning committee for the schools, combines both interests.

"If they'd followed our procedures, everything would have been done -- by the fall of 1974!"

Two referendums on renovating the high school were defeated at the polls in 1975.

Formed in 1970. The citizens committee was appointed in January, 1970, to study the problem of the antiquated and over-crowded high school, and advise the Princeton community and school board what should be done. However, the new committee announced that it wanted to examine the problem within the broader context of the whole school system, and it did so.

"As we began to work," Mr. Selden mused, "there appeared to be what I can only call a receding enthusiasm on the part of the superintendent for our activities and our recommendations. There seemed no lack of interest on the part of the board, but that doesn't mean they were committed to our recommendations, or that everyone on the board was interested."

"I can only conclude that the responsibility for lack of implementation rests largely with the administration," he continued. "It is very difficult for a board to implement anything unless there is willingness on the part of the chief administrative officer."

"My contention is that Superintendent McPherson could have pushed for implementation of our recommendations. His lack of constructive action relates to the difficulties a superintendent has -- and many superintendents today are having these difficulties -- in dealing with teachers, with the public and with the board."

"New Face Needed." "As it is now, the superintendent is in such a situation that no matter how adaptable or creative he is, it is impossible for him to give the leadership that is needed. When you're so maligned, when your board has said they have such lack of confidence, it's extremely difficult to get onto a new footing. This needn't be interpreted as a criticism of Philip McPherson -- in any system, there is a period when one individual can be constructive, then a time comes when a new face is needed, without criticism of the man who is leaving."

Turning to the tenure question, Mr. Selden recalled that his committee urged the Princeton school board to support efforts to modify state tenure laws. The group also advised the board to hold the number of teachers on tenure to one-third of the staff.

"This is a threat to teachers, I agree," Mr. Selden said, "but the withdrawal of West Windsor students was to mean loss of half-a-million dollars. Little apparent attention has been paid to the impact of that loss."

Ceiling on Tenure. "Why did we encourage a ceiling on tenure? For the long-term benefit of the community," he explained, "we saw an economic strangle -- hold on the part of the teaching profession."

A tenure study was indeed carried out, at the board's direction, "but what developed was that a couple of years ago, tenure was granted to a large number of teachers. There may have been good reasons for this, but it was refutation of our recommendation."

Mr. Selden, formerly on the administrative staff of Princeton University and now a consultant in the health field, spoke philosophically about teaching, teachers, and change.

"Teachers, nationally, are much more aggressive now.

They use euphemisms for the word 'union' because they want to enhance their professional position, yet they resort to tactics traditionally associated with labor-union activities. This isn't singular for Princeton, and I'm not castigating Princeton teachers!"

"Here in Princeton, you find teachers less adaptable to change -- the familiar is much more congenial to them. There is lack of adaptability to change in the community, too; fear encourages pulling in and protecting what you have."

Tenure Opposed. "We see a resurgent emphasis of so-called 'basic education' and in a certain way, properly so, because of the tendency to emphasize innovation as a goal in itself. Innovation, really, is only a means of adapting to changing conditions."

"I'm not being critical of teachers when I say this. These tendencies are nationwide, and we don't have them here to the degree you find them in large cities where teachers feel defenseless."

"Where administrative officers are concerned, I do not support tenure, and I don't mean this as a slap at present personnel. Tenure is not needed, because there can be protection through contracts. We do need protection for Labor Day, traditional and of the summer season, isn't far away and in the intervening time, the weather is expected to be largely enjoyable. True, cloudy skies Thursday and showers Friday are currently in the forecast, but a pleasant weekend is on the Man's schedule.

teachers. But with administrative personnel, you can get so tied up it's hard to move in ways that are most effective. And no one person should have tenure when that person cannot effectively conduct responsibilities."

Greater Involvement Urged. The long-range report also recommended wider use of the whole Princeton community.

"We made specific references to the educational and economic benefits of involving the schools with the community," Mr. Selden says,

"some kind of educational years and only four new cooperation and joint use of facilities with Westminster Choir College, for example."

It would have helped both the Choir College and the Princeton schools, Mr. Selden believes, to use facilities jointly. The Choir College is across Walnut Lane from Princeton High School and across Franklin Avenue from John Witherspoon Middle School.

"We're now in a time of economic duress that won't ameliorate for some time. I think we should begin at once to educate kids with the values of thrift and education in an environment. I'll call 'utilitarian,' although it needn't lack the amenities and the arts."

"For example, a person doesn't necessarily need a four-year B.A. degree to lead a successful life. And education, to be successful, needn't be pursued in the most modern structure. Princeton High should have been remodeled, but not with all the trimmings. I voted for the bond issue, but I thought the money was doing more than was appropriate."

Recommendations in the long-range report were "broad and sweeping," Mr. Selden acknowledges, and he concludes, "I never thought Princeton schools would suffer if all our recommendations were not implemented. Still..."

ENROLLMENT UP AT PDS
New Program Planned. Enrollments are on the rise again at Princeton Day School, following a two-year decline, and plans for an innovative after-school program for younger students have been completed.

Headmaster Douglas O. McClure predicts a minimum enrollment of 825 -- an increase of 20 over last year -- when school opens Monday, September 8, for grades five through twelve and Wednesday, September 10, for kindergarten through fourth grade. The size of the faculty remains the same at 94, with fewer changes than in past Lower School Head Steven M. Gilbert has instituted the after-school program, which will be available to lower school children whose parents work, have difficulty arranging transportation or feel their child would benefit from more social contact. The program will be under the direction of a professional teacher, assisted by upper and middle school students in the school's teaching assistant program. Held from the end of the school day -- which varies with each lower grade -- until at least 5 p.m., the program will be a mix of studies matched with classroom goals, arts and crafts and recreation.

Commenting on the new program, Mr. Gilbert said the purpose is not primarily remedial. "A lot of parents want, and a lot of children could benefit from, something that goes longer than our school day."

Although the first grade day has been lengthened from

PHS Council President Lists Plans for New Year

"I hope Student Council can appeal to different groups than in the past," said Todd Zapolski, Princeton High School's new Council president this week. "By trying to appeal to everyone, Council has just been hitting the same people all the time."

Some kids are oriented toward the student governing body and its activities, Todd points out. Other students, not quite so interested, get left out and feel left out.

"Maybe," Todd proposes, "we could get a major car dealer to do a show for kids who like cars. I'd like to get the United Voices gospel choir back because it appeals very strongly to black kids. In sports, it would be great to get Bill Bradley back for the student-faculty basketball game."

In a community like Princeton, Todd believes, a lot of students have contacts: parents who know famous people, relatives in industry, friends who'd be willing to come and talk to students. Princeton's Medical Center has done this, Todd says, "but it's been for science people, who are sort of a group to themselves. We haven't had many science-oriented shows or assemblies."

Mrs. Fenwick Coming. One friend of a student who has promised to come and speak, is Congresswoman Millicent Fenwick. Todd ran her Princeton headquarters in last fall's election campaign.

In fact, government and politics are blood, bone and life for the new Student Council president. Having helped to elect Republican Fenwick (he also campaigned for Democrat Helen Meyner at the same time), he is now a campaign aide for Lucy Mackenzie and Michael Arcieri, Democratic candidates for the 14th New Jersey State Assembly district, of which Princeton is part. He's been working on brochure lay-out and setting up the campaign for a full and rolling start after Labor Day.

PRESIDENT: Todd Zapolski, new president of the Princeton High Student Council, waits outside the lower door for the new year to begin.

This June, Todd was a delegate to the New Jersey Boys' State at Rider College, sponsored by the American Legion. He has an extensive collection of historic political memorabilia.

Served on Council. Todd was a member of the PHS Student Council in freshman, sophomore and junior years before campaigning successfully for the presidency. The Council has one member from each English class, and ten at-large members appointed by the president. Elections will be held the third week in September.

Council arranges school dances and scholarship fund-raising events. In past years the group has raised money for Nicaraguan relief, has sponsored a foreign-born child, and has contributed to the high school's own scholarship fund. Last year, there was a PHS-wide "swim day" at Community Park school, everyone invited free.

Also, last year, Council

students entering grades ten through twelve. The traditional open house, at which new Lower and Middle School students meet with faculty members, will begin at 2:30 p.m. the same day.

Among the new faculty members is Mrs. Sandra Bartlett, who has taught in Hartford, Conn. and in the West Windsor public schools and who will join the girls' physical education department. Jane E. Grigger will teach mathematics and science in the Middle School. The arrival of fourth-grade teacher Patricia McCord, whose husband teaches Latin at P.D.S., will add to the number of husband-wife combinations at the school.

John T. Osander, formerly Director of Admissions at Princeton University, will be an assistant to Herbert McAneny, longtime director of dramatics at the school.

Returning from sabbatical are A. Parry Jones and Harry Rulon-Miller. Mr. Jones, who teaches modern European history and Asian history, traveled in the Far East, including The People's Republic of China, and in France. Mr. Rulon-Miller, who teaches mathematics and coaches varsity hockey, spent the year in Colorado.

There will be a change in P.D.S.'s interscholastic athletic program this year. The junior teams will be made up of 8th and 9th graders, rather than 7th and 8th, but 7th grade students who are qualified will have a chance to participate. Qualified ninth grade students may also try out for junior varsity or varsity teams.

The junior teams will practice after school at the same time that varsity teams do. Students who are not on interscholastic teams will participate in physical education classes scheduled during the regular school day, which include an active intramural program.

NEW HEAD SOUGHT

At Chapin School. Chapin School has begun the search for a new head "master" or "mistress." Mrs. Harrison Young, who has presided over Chapin School for the past 7 years, will resign at the end of the coming academic year to move to Philadelphia, where her husband's business now is.

Her departure, plus continuing enrollment pressure partially met by construction of two new classrooms, will be uppermost in the minds of Chapin parents and teachers when the school opens September 11.

Located on Mercer Road at Provinceline in what was once a handsome farmhouse, this small supportive school for children in grades K-8 has seen steady growth since it began 44 years ago as remedial and tutorial classes. The new classrooms, self-contained rooms for kindergarten and first grade use, have been added to the rear of the school, and are duplicates of two others built recently. The four primary grades will thus be housed all together. Pressure on the middle three grades in the rest of the building will be relieved by certain other alterations. Chapin added a large library and an upper school building two years ago.

Although the enrollment stands at a healthy 175, Chapin aims to keep the pupil teacher ratio low, with a staff of 22 full-time teachers. Staff includes a developmental reading teacher who works individually with certain children and helps the regular reading teacher for each grade to develop individualized reading programs.

The Parents Association will hold a welcome coffee Wednesday, September 10, at 10 for old and new parents to meet the staff, which this year has several new members.

Bruce Delvinthal, a graduate of Hamilton College and Princeton Theological Seminary who has taught at John Witherspoon School and Peddie School, will be the upper school social studies teacher. Mrs. John Hallock, who has taught in the Princeton Middle School and Princeton High School, will teach math. Teaching Kindergarten will be Mrs. George Boardman, formerly at Miss Mason's, while Daniel Heller, a Middlebury College graduate will teach upper school English.

Chapin also now has its first full-time business manager. She is Mrs. Hugh Vaughan of Cranbury, formerly at the Princeton Day School

166th YEAR TO START

For Lawrenceville. The Lawrenceville School will begin its 166th academic year on September 12 with an enrollment of 734 students from 46 states and 24 foreign countries. The student body will include 202 day students and about one out of every seven will receive some degree of financial aid from the $385,000 the school has budgeted for that purpose.

Striking an optimistic note in the school's Annual Report, which will be published in conjunction with the opening of the new school year, Head Master Bruce McClellan states in part, "Lawrenceville stands strong. Some familiar problems have remained in evidence during the past year, and some new concerns have developed. But the school continues with resourcelfulness and vigor to make an important contribution to American education."

Director of Admission Philip G. Pratt reports that the quality of entering students is slightly stronger than it was a year ago. Although the number of formal applications Lawrenceville received this year was up about 10 percent from last year, Pratt reports that the competition was especially keen for the dwindling male pool of ninth and tenth graders.

Lawrenceville remains one of the few independent secondary schools which has not adopted coeducation, although the Board of Trustees continues to study the question and the Head Master states in his report, "In terms of admissions, we must ask ourselves whether remaining a boys' school is a plus or a minus as young people and their parents make school decisions."

New students will register between 9 and 2 on Friday, September 12, in the Kirby Arts Center. Returning students will register between 9 and 5 on Saturday, Sep-

STUART OPENS SEPT. 10
With Enrollment of 330. Completely renovated biology and chemistry laboratories and a new science preparation room will greet students enrolled at Stuart Country Day School when classes resume on Wednesday, September 10.

A grant of $15,600 from the Edward E. Ford Foundation has made possible the renovation of these areas, which will also allow space for lecture rooms and laboratories with new cabinets, sinks, desks, and laboratory furniture and equipment.

The opening of the 13th year at Stuart will bring 330 girls from Princeton and the surrounding areas for the kindergarten through 12th grades. The pre-school at Stuart is co-ed.

Sister Judith Garson, Headmistress, reports the addition of new members of the administration and faculty beginning in September. Serving as Curriculum Coordinator Sister M. de Lourdes Roesel comes to Stuart from Marymount Secondary School in Tarrytown, N.Y. where she has been Principal. She received both her B.A. and M.A. from Marymount College and her M.L.S. from Columbia University. Further graduate study in Curriculum Development was completed at the University of Massachusetts and the University of Nevada.

During the summer of 1974 she was an IDEA Fellow at Colorado College participating in the program: Current Goals for Secondary Education. She has served on many evaluation teams for the Middle Atlantic States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Returning to Stuart will be Sister de La Chapelle, who has been named Head of the Upper School. Currently Dean of Students at Newton College, she has served as teacher and administrator at Stone Ridge Country Day in Washington, D.C. This year she was included in the 1975-76 edition of Who's Who of American Women.

She is a graduate of Maryville College in St. Louis and received her MA from Catholic University in Washington, D.C. She is a member of the American Council on Education and the National Association of Women Deans, Administrators and Counselors.

Patricia Cross also returns to Stuart after teaching here part-time in 1973-74. She will join the Middle School as an eighth grade English and Social Studies teacher.

A graduate of Birmingham University with honors in History, she completed her post-graduate certificate in Education from London University Institute of Education. She has taught in England, Princeton and Montgomery schools and most recently at PDS.

Kay Haartz will be teaching mathematics in the Upper School. She is a native of Massachusetts and was graduated from Abbot Academy (Andover) and Mt. Holyoke College, where she majored in mathematics. She received her M.Ed from Northeastern in Boston.

Elizabeth Dykstra will join the Middle School faculty teaching mathematics. A graduate of the University of Michigan in her native state, she is presently living in Princeton while her husband is in the doctoral program of Princeton Theological Seminary.

GARBAGEMAN INJURED

On N. Tulane Street. A garbageman was injured last week when he was struck by a car while working on N. Tulane Street.

John Simone, 24, 339 Mount Lucas Road, was taken by the driver, Joachim H. Petrescu, 26, Northgate Apartments, Cranbury, to Princeton Medical Center where he was treated for three fractures of the lower right leg.

Mr. Petrescu told police that the disposal truck had been parked in the wrong lane. He pulled around the truck to pass and was almost clear when Mr. Simone ran out from behind the truck into his path.

"I didn't see his car because I didn't look his way," Mr. Simone was quoted by Ptl. William Hunter. There were no charges.

Joseph P. McGuinn, 20, 23 Shady Brook Lane was charged with leaving the scene of damaged property and careless driving following an incident Thursday midnight on Shady Brook Lane.

Police said that McGuinn was allegedly going too fast, forcing his car to run up the lawn of 77 Shady Brook, where it struck trees and a sign and continued on. Mr. McGuinn was found by police in his driveway approximately 300 yards from the scene.

Want a Book on Sharks from Public Library? "That Movie" Has Swept the Shelves Clean

Sharks.....If you want to find out anything about sharks, don't turn to the Public Library, at least not for a while. Practically all the shark books have been checked out and Dudley Carlson, children's librarian, doesn't think there will be any back on the shelves until "that movie" has left town.

Other than that, it's been a circus all summer at Princeton's Public Library. The baby elephant in the children's room was donated by the Medical Center Fete committee. The acrobats, trapezing from the ceiling, and the seal next to the elephant and the giant double-dip ice-cream cones were made from papier mache by kids who learned how at the library.

"Dracula" (and sharks), realistic books about "kids like me" (and sharks), jigsaw puzzles and checkers (and sharks), Nancy Drew and The Hardy Boys (and sharks).....that's what they've been doing at the library this summer.

Nancy Drew? Professional librarians tremble when you speak the name, and some libraries scoop up the Nancy Drew and Hardy Boys off the shelves when accrediting committees come around. Other libraries refuse to have the books at all.

By the Dozen. In the children's department at the Princeton library are 12 Nancy Drews and 12 Hardy Boys. "They were here when I started work," Ms. Carlson says with a sigh. "I wouldn't get rid of them, but I wouldn't start buying them, either. They are ALWAYS in demand."

Resigned and philosophical, Ms. Carlson says that some kids do get stuck in reading. They want more than just Jane-and-Dick first grade stuff, but they aren't quite ready for "real" books.

"Things like Nancy Drew help these kids along to harder books," she has found, "the length is just right—not too long—and there's just enough plot. And for older kids—middle school—who aren't doing any reading at all and who want some adventure but aren't willing to put out any effort—well, these books occupy them for a couple of months, and then they're ready for one notch higher."

"As for not stocking them on the library's shelves," she points out, "most kids will get them somewhere, and there's nothing really bad about the books. They're just manufactured drivel."

Fantasies Popular. The most popular summer books at the library are almost always the fantasies, especially Tolkien and C.S. Lewis. Kids like books in series.

Ms. Carlson likes Susan Cooper's "The Dark is Rising," conceived along the lines of Tolkien, and the books of Zylpha Snyder. "Good, solid fantasy," is the way the librarian characterizes these books.

But realism is popular, too. "Boys and girls like books about somebody 'just like me' and for girls, one of the best writers is Judy Blume. She did 'Are You There, God? It's Me, Margaret.'"

Ms. Carlson, pausing to tell a persistent customer that the hard puzzle with the snow picture must be in the jigsaw basket somewhere, commends Louise Fitzhugh for "Nobody's Family is Going to Change."

Family in Conflict. "This book has a nice, contemporary twist," she smiles. "It's about a girl who wants to be a lawyer and her brother who wants to go on stage as a dancer, and the parents who are violently opposed to both, and the way the kids try to cope."

On the grimmer side of realism, is "Of Love and Death and Other Journeys," about a teen-ager whose mother is dying of cancer, and what the girl learns about her parents' divorce. Seventh and eighth graders like this one.

Reading isn't everything—a heretical statement to make in a public library. But the half-dozen inexpensive tape recorders and the ear-phones and the cassettes are reeling away every minute of the day.

"She's listening to 'Dracula' probably," says Ms. Carlson, observing a rapt young listener whose eyes are on a far, far horizon. "We have tapes of some old radio mysteries, like an episode of 'The Shadow' and 'Suspense' and a real weird-o called 'Ghosts and Ghouls' that's the most popular thing ever. It's creepy, with those augmented, in-a-tunnel voices, you know?"

The library also has cassettes based on pre-school picture books and film strips for some of the cassettes that let you look while you listen.

The summer population in the children's room is younger than the winter population. Mothers with pre-book children who can't get away in bad winter weather, descend on the air-conditioned library summer afternoons.

"We're in the neighborhood traffic pattern," Ms. Carlson says, looking around the busy room, "some kids walk here from Community Park pool, stay awhile to cool off in our air-conditioning, then go off somewhere else. And kids who

FOUR YOUTHS CHARGED
In Campus Entry. Four juveniles, all from West Windsor, have been charged with breaking and entering, following their apprehension early Monday on Washington Road.

At 1:37 in the morning, Douglas Watson Jr., a Princeton University proctor, observed youths running from the campus across the street where they entered a car. He recorded the license number and informed police.

The car was later stopped on Washington Road. Inside was the 17-year old driver and three 15-year olds. An investigation revealed that the youths had allegedly broken into the PUB on the university campus and stolen beer mugs and a quantity of liquor.

They were turned over to the Borough Juvenile Officer, Douglas Watson Sr. (Proctor Watson's father) for processing.

IT'S NEW

To Us

While the calendar may say summer has another month to go, in the minds of most of us Labor Day marks the end of carefree days. This year this holiday arrives at its earliest possible date - September 1, and a short two days later the school doors will once again open in Princeton and neighboring communities.

Back-to-school time is fast approaching and with it the yearly search for new lunchboxes, notebooks and clothing. Fashion-wise it's a great time to be a child. Rigid standards have all but disappeared from the scene and the clothing is easy-going and comfortable.

Regardless of their age, young girls like to look like bigger girls and at Bellows (210 Nassau Street) there is a set of Love Bug coordinates that includes the newer length skirt, slacks and sweaters.

This just-below-the-knee skirt buttons down the front and according to Bellows is "the best selling skirt all over the country." It comes in an olive green, French blue or navy. The grouping also contains striped sweaters, glen plaid slacks, a pleated mini skirt and a shirt jacket. Each piece costs between $12 and $14 for sizes 7 to 14.

Dresses Seldom Seen. The young have totally adopted the pants look -- after approximately second grade dresses are seldom seen in the school corridors -- and this fall Sunflowers has made a darling red pinwale cotton corduroy suit. Both the pants ($15) and zipper-front shirt jacket ($22) are embroidered with a group of flowers and then teamed with a deep pink blouse, $12.

For many mothers Florence Eiseman is synonymous with back-to-school clothing. These knits wear extremely well and with their uncluttered lines always seem to look neat. From this company, Bellows has a green v-neck jumper in a flat knit. It has a front pocket and can be worn with a green and white striped turtleneck, $14 and $12 respectively.

We also saw a navy skirt with a small stylized flower design in red and white. Coordinating with this is a navy blouse with white collar and cuffs, $10 and $11. And as a final touch to any wardrobe we suggest the white turtleneck with red, navy and green rugby stripes, $10.

Another keynote this Fall is the continuing interest in SUNDAY SUIT: For boys who want to be as nattily attired as their fathers, Bellows offers this red Stewart plaid by IMP. The pieces are sold as separates so they can be teamed with solid slacks or jackets too; and for the little guys who aren't quite ready for a regular jacket, there is a matching leisure suit that looks well with a turtleneck and sweater.

classics such as kilts in a range of tartans and crewneck cardigan sweaters to match them all, $20 and $9. The prices quoted here and above are for sizes 7 to 14, but toddler sizes are generally available too.

Around the corner in the teenage department we noticed one of the season's popular items - a blue jean bib-front jumper with large pockets and white top-stitching, $12.

There is also a suede-like rust set of coordinates that includes slacks, shirtjacket and a fly-front flared skirt, $13 to $21. Then for a more sophisticated look we liked the kahki dress with its front zipper, hemp belt, mini cap sleeves and breast pockets, $30. It is handsome alone or worn with a long-sleeved green calico blouse, $16.

Good Grief, Snoopy! Each year Danskin outdoes itself in producing new designs and this fall the Snoopy motif that took hold last year has been expanded. Now the country's favorite dog and pal Charlie Brown will be found under a tree reading the paper (or - could it be the comics?)

Allen's Children's Center, (134 Nassau Street) carries virtually the entire Danskin line and thus has the new Snoopy collection. The scoop-necked jumper with its gently gathered empire waist and large pockets is particularly outstanding, as are the new matching knee socks and tights. In addition there are important than the flares and Allen's feels the corduroy ones by Lee are the best in the store. They may cost a little more (about $10 - $14) but because of the high percentage of cotton in the fabric they wear extremely well.

These pants come in an incredible number of colors - blue, tan, brown, olive, cream and navy. Lee also makes tough jeans in colors and there are other pants by Mann, Billy the Kid and Adler.

The shirt of the year has Rugby stripes in whatever colors you want. Robert Bruce, Donmoor and Lacoste each make a version, and according to Allen's they are selling like wildfire.

Robert Bruce also makes Allen's finest sweater. Called the Wool o' Mist, it is a wool and acrylic crewneck that comes in 10 colors, can be machine washed and dried,

When it comes to a more formal look the jeans sets are most important to both the toddlers and girls. Mitey Miss offers several choices - a blue corduroy with a floral printed yoke and sleeves, and a navy or burgundy set with embroidered flowers on the jacket, $18 to $25 for sizes 4 to 14.

We also notices some dusty rose plaid slacks by Sunflowers that come with a long-sleeved cream colored blouse and a dusty rose sweater vest with an open-stitch design, $36.

And For Boys....Shirts, jeans and sweaters are still the major items for back-to-school dress. Allen's has recently enlarged its boys' area giving more space to the many jeans and creating a separate room for sweatshirts (another must for any boy.)

After many years straight leg pants are once again more

Chesebro to Begin Final Year at Hun School; Enrollment during His Tenure Has Grown 600%

Back in the spring of 1951, when Paul R. Chesebro was named headmaster of the Hun School, the future of that private, boys' boarding school was hardly a bright one. In March of that year the school's board of trustees took a close look at Hun's sagging enrollment — only about 80 students — and mounting deficit. The trustees saw only two courses of action: Either raise $25,000 within 10 days or close the doors by the end of the spring term.

The money was raised, the school stayed open, and Dr. Chesebro began a tenure of leadership that saw Hun grow into one of the few remaining academically prestigious, financially stable, private secondary schools in the nation. The success of the Hun School, which has had balanced budgets for the past 16 years and has now reached a capacity enrollment of 460, can be attributed largely to Dr. Chesebro's insistence on the traditional approaches to discipline and curriculum while simultaneously initiating major innovations, notably coeducation and an expanded program for day students.

Dr. Chesebro will retire June 30, 1976, after a quarter century of service as headmaster. He has described his own educational philosophy as one that embraces "values that are timeless and changes that are timely."

As Dr. Chesebro begins his final academic year as headmaster, the Hun School is initiating several changes, including a girls' boarding program and an expansion of the curriculum, that seem entirely within his stated philosophy.

"The broadening of our programs reflects an enrollment growth of nearly 50 percent in the past five years," Dr. Chesebro said. "With this growth comes a wider range of student interests and needs. What we are holding constant is a traditional, structured environment in which these particular innovations are taking place."

Four Years Coed. The initiation of girls boarding follows four years of coeducation in the day program, the expansion of the fine arts program, and the development of girls' athletic teams.

The seventh and eighth grade Middle School will have a revised curriculum to facilitate students taking advanced work in Upper School subjects. Reading and science will receive additional emphasis, a cultural approach to foreign language study will be introduced, and art studio facilities will be almost doubled in size.

In the Upper School a new computer program will be introduced this fall. A self-contained, modular PDP-8 computer with several terminals will be used in conjunction with the mathematics curriculum and for interdisciplinary coursework.

A new course in psychology will be offered, and intermediate level courses will supplement basic offerings in Hun's Special Program for Foreign Students, a national pilot project supported by The C.V. Starr Foundation. Instrumental music will be offered as a supplement to the highly-emphasized choral courses and activities.

Moral Standards. Among several personnel changes will be the appointment of Reverend Redford Nash as Hun chaplain. Reverend Nash, who is associated with Princeton Theological Seminary, will coordinate religious activities, teach seminars in religion, and counsel students.

Dr. Chesebro said emphasis will continue to be placed upon academic and moral standards during his final year at Hun.

"In these uncertain, changing times, we find young people are well served by having a stable set of academic and moral standards to use as a reference point during their adolescent years," Dr. Chesebro said. "We will stand firm on our traditional, structured approach to education."

Founded in 1914 by John G. Hun and originally known as the Princeton Tutoring School, the Edgerstoune Road institution has been noted for its discipline and traditional curriculum. In the beginning the school specialized in taking students who had failed academically elsewhere, or who had been discipline problems at other institutions, and prepare them for the rigors of higher education, primarily at Princeton University.

One Reservation. Students today are more often academically superior, with a broad range of educational interests and a wide range of college aspirations. Looking back on the changes in the Hun student body, Dr. Chesebro has one major reservation about the current group. "They don't know a damn thing about written English," he has said. Students today are "so tuned in to the electronic media — they've gotten used to getting everything through osmosis."

The outgoing headmaster's attitude toward discipline has been that "without it you haven't got a school. Discipline must be fair-minded but visible at all times." The school made national news in the mid-'60s when Dr. Chesebro reluctantly expelled 14 boys who were experimenting with what was then an uncommon schoolboy vice: smoking marijuana.

Dr. Chesebro first came to Princeton as a graduate student in chemistry at the University, following his 1926 graduation from Amherst College. From 1929 to 1931 he was assistant principal of the Hun School.

In 1931 he left Hun to become assistant director of Mercer Junior College. He also tutored in physics and chemistry at Princeton University during this period. In 1936 he returned to Hun to serve as assistant headmaster. In 1940 he left Hun again, this time to take a position as mathematics instructor at Princeton High School. He held that position until he was called back to Hun as headmaster.

Major Expansion. In his nearly 25 years as headmaster, Dr. Chesebro has overseen major expansion of the school's physical plant, including the construction in 1959 of John Poe complex, consisting of dormitory, student lounge and kitchen, named after the late president of the First National Bank of Princeton and the man who was chairman of the Hun trustees when Dr. Chesebro was named headmaster.

Other new buildings in these years include a new dormitory, Carter Hall, built in 1964; the new academic center, also completed in 1964, now named after Dr. Chesebro; the new gymnasium, 1969; and the student activities center which was completed this year. In Dr. Chesebro's tenure as headmaster the size of the Hun athletic fields has doubled.

Apart from these bricks-and-mortar achievements, Dr. Chesebro takes pride in Hun's successful transition to coeducation four years ago and in the development of the Visiting Scholar Program, which brings University professors to the Hun campus to conduct seminars and to serve as visiting faculty. This program will continue this year under the sponsorship of the Edward E. Ford Foundation.

A search committee for Dr. Chesebro's successor has been formed under the direction of Richard Challener, chairman of the Hun School Education Committee and a history professor at Princeton University. The committee hopes to choose a new headmaster by December, so the new person can work with Dr. Chesebro during the spring term.

Civic Activities. Dr. Chesebro and his wife, Florence, are the parents of two daughters and five grandchildren. He has served as an elder of the First Presbyterian Church; magistrate of the municipal court of Princeton Borough, from 1946-1958; president of the Princeton YMCA, 1950-'52; president of the Princeton Rotary Club, 1957-'58; president of the American Schoolboy Rowing Association, 1964-'71; director of the Princeton Chamber of Commerce, 1966-'69; and chairman of the Mercer County Heart Fund campaign, 1969-'72.

In 1973 he was chosen "man of the year" by the Greater Princeton Chamber of Commerce and Civil Council.

Varga To Open 3rd Store

Avant Garde, a third store for Robert Varga, Inc. will open Wednesday, August 27 at 1784 North Olden Avenue in Ewing Township.

The store will gear itself to the unusual, young ideas in sportswear, knockout dresses, sweaters, leather jackets and coats, a "Mad Hatter" department and all accessories including handbags, jewelry, scarves and gloves.

Dona Papa, the junior sportswear buyer for all the Robert Varga shops, will manage the store, which is decorated in shades of grey with accents of white. It has a spacious setting with tent dressing areas, palms and white wooden fixtures and natural baskets.

It's New to Us

and always looks great, $13 for size 16.

While sweatshirts have always been popular, this year they have taken on more of a fashion look - possibly winter's answer to t-shirts. They come in every imaginable color, including denims; some have hoods; many zip closed; others come with football numerals; and yes - if you prefer, the traditional grey is still around.

Izod sweaters, Lacoste shirts, sportcoats by IMP and lots of slacks sum up the boys' clothing at Bellows. Among the slacks we saw tough jeans and corduroys by Mann, some with a "Stronger than Iron" guarantee; grey flannels which can be impossible to find in small sizes; and several handsome tartans, $7 to $15.

One of the tartans (the red Stewart) can be matched with a jacket to form a suit, $26 for sizes 4-7 and $30 for 8-14, or worn with a blue blazer if you prefer a contrasting look.

The true colors of the sweaters team well with all the slacks. There is a kelly green, a soft blue and a bright yellow to mention just three, $10 and $13 depending upon the size. In addition to this sweater by Izod, there is a shetland import from Scotland that comes in some lovely heather shades, $22.

The rugby shirts come in green and navy, yellow and blue, or grey and red stripes. Lacoste also makes a soccer shirt with a white collar and contrasting stripes on the sleeves, $11.50 for both in sizes 8 to 14; and this year there is a new turtleneck striped in heather tones of wine, green or navy, $7.50.

The shoes also reflect the casual and extremely practical look of today's children's clothing, and the best-known of all shoes - the Stride Rite ones are at Hulit's Shoes (140 Nassau Street) with a fall collection of "scuffies."

These shoes all have a natural or cushion crepe sole that wears well, is comfortable and doesn't slip on a smooth floor or jungle gym. There is a navy or red sandal with white topstitching and several tie models with a workshoe look in navy, tan or red, generally priced from $14 to $17.

New at Hulit's are the Miss Capezio shoes which starting at size one fit all but the smallest girl. There is a blue sandal to replace the traditional Marv Jane which is fast fading from sight, and our favorite a blue or tan suede tassel loafer with a crepe sole and wedge heel, $19 to $22 depending upon the size.

The teenagers continue to favor the moccasin look and Hulit's has quite a few of these. Four out of five have a slight wedge and they all have crepe or hiking soles. There is the all-time favorite Clark's Wallabee, the Top Sider moccasin and many more priced from about $23 on up.

Even if a boy consents to a pair of shoes, sneakers will undoubtedly be his first love and the big name here is Pro Keds, which come in many canvas colors, $13.95 to size 6. In the larger sizes you can choose suede in addition to the canvas and these cost $22 to $26. Larger canvas sneakers are $15.

However, if he does need shoes too, Stride Rite has a large group for boys that include a workshoe with a vibram sole, a suede dessert stock of typewriters, boot and a moccasin style to calculators and lamps.

Socks have become high fashion once again and Hulit's has loads including cable-knee socks in all colors, argyles, stripes and patterns.

To Help With Math...As a final back-to-school thought, particularly if you have an older child, you might want to look at Center Business Machines, (104 Nassau Street)

With the advent of pocket calculators, one might wonder whether math might not disappear from the curriculum. Probably not, but they certainly simplify matters and the prices nicely start at $19.95 for a Texas Instruments model.

We were most impressed with the selection of clip-on desk lamps. They bend in any direction, come with a spotlight for easy reading, and you can choose from five colors - white, red, orange, blue or black, $16.95 to $39.95.

PAINTERS ON STRIKE

First One at University. Princeton University in its recent past has witnessed many student strikes and picket lines. But this week, for the first time ever as far as anyone knows, the University was picketed by a labor union which walked off the job in a contract dispute.

Thirty-three University painters, members of Union Local 1987 of the Maintenance Painters and Trades, voted over the weekend to go on strike Monday morning. The painters manned picket lines at the main entrances to the campus beginning at 8 a.m. The painters reported that at least two other trade unions — masons and plumbers — honored their picket lines.

Two other unions, representing the maintenance and cleaning workers and operating engineers, held meetings at noon Monday and decided they would not join in the painters' strike. The Princeton University Library Assistants Association which is still seeking recognition as a union, was not involved in this action.

PAINTED COMMENTS: Picket signs at student demonstrations were never this good, but these of course are the work of professionals, Union Local 1987 of the Maintenance Painters and Trades of Princeton. Manning the picket line at the driveway on University Place leading to the University dining halls are Pat Lawson, left, and Hugh Hackney, both of Lambertville. The painters went on strike Monday, the first time ever that a union had struck the University. Thinking back to the student strike of 1970, Mr. Hackney said: "It's too bad the students aren't around now -- we could use some help."

The union also complained that the University was making a salary offer that was the same given to the maintenance employees.

"The University had the responsibility of bargaining in good faith with the Painters Union as a separate bargaining unit," a union press release stated. "The refusal to offer the Painters Union any different salary or fringe benefits was a deliberate attempt by Princeton University to destroy the Painters Union. This anti-unionism on the part of Princeton University was the prime cause for the union taking this disastrous action."

"Right to Unite." The statement concluded: "A liberal institution like Princeton University should not discourage unions, but on the other hand, should encourage the right of laborers to unite for their common good."

William S. Reed, director of personnel services, said that the University had not yet suffered any adverse effects from the strike. A major electrical rewiring job was continuing on schedule at Firestone Library, he said. The work interrupted by the strike was the routine painting and upkeep, mostly of interior areas, done on a year-round basis by the painters.

Mr. Reed said he was unsure of exactly how much more vacation the painters were demanding. "They haven't been clear on that point. All I know is that they want more," he said. The vacation stalemate led to the breakdown in negotiations last Friday.

No further meetings were scheduled between the two parties. "It will probably be a while," predicted Mr. Reed.

No Strike Fund. Spokesman for the union said that the painters had no strike fund. Princeton attorney Joseph Stonaker, representing the union, said the strike vote by the painters was "a testimony to their belief in unionism." The vote was 26 in favor of the strike, five opposed.

Princeton's Freshman Class of 1,125 to Bring Undergraduate Enrollment to 4,343 for '75-'76

Princeton University will welcome 1,125 new undergraduates, 800 men and 325 women, when the 1975-76 academic year begins next month.

The total undergraduate enrollment of 4,343 will include 3,061 men and 1,282 women and another 1,455 graduate students bring the University's total student population for the new year to 5,798. The School of Engineering and Applied Science will have the largest total enrollment in its history — 750 students — and has admitted a record 240 freshmen.

The newly-entering undergraduates, including foreign and transfer students, will gather for their first meeting on Tuesday morning, September 9. Registration of various segments of the student body will go on throughout the week, opening exercises will take place in the University Chapel on Sunday, September 14, at 11 and classes will begin two days later.

The University's trustees last January, approved increases totaling $625 — $400 in tuition and $225 in room and board fees — and were faced at their April meeting with a student demonstration in which protestors sought their reconsideration of the hike. It was a peaceful gathering which featured signs and shouted slogans but university security personnel reported no arrests.

Financial Aid Available. Princeton's comprehensive fee (tuition, matriculation, graduation, medical insurance, use of library, infirmary and laboratories) now stands at $3,900, board rates range from $730 to $1,070, and room charges vary from $830 to $880. With an allowance of $715 for other expenses, the likely total budget for Princeton students in the coming year will slightly exceed $6,500. However, substantial increases in the funds available for financial aid were also voted by Princeton's trustees at the time of the tuition increase and that this will significantly blunt its effect on the financial aid recipients who are approximately 45 percent of the student body.

A major change in academic structure and program for the coming year will result from the creation of a new department of comparative literature. The full-fledged department is the outgrowth of a comparative literature program which began in 1962 with only graduate offerings and was expanded four years ago to include undergraduate courses. It will feature an interdisciplinary approach for undergraduates encouraging the knowledge of two foreign languages and is expected to influence the graduate program as well as the undergraduate by providing more stability and greater resources.

Trees have been relocated and most of the site clearing, excavation and footings have been completed for the construction of the new Seeley G. Mudd Manuscript Library, a $2.5 million facility being built on Olden Street across from the Engineering Quadrangle. A number of the exterior walls have also been poured for this structure which is slated for completion in the late summer of 1976 and will be ready for use at the start of the academic year 1976-77.

The new structure is the first to be designed under a new energy conservation program adopted by the university. No other new construction is presently underway at Princeton although a number of renovation projects have been going on around the campus throughout the summer.

The Princeton-Yale football game on November 15 will be the unofficial homecoming for the Tigers and will also mark the 40th anniversary of the undefeated football team of 1935. The following week, November 22, Princeton will be the host to Dartmouth and will also celebrate the 25th anniversary of the undefeated football team of 1950.

In anticipation of the bicentennial celebration throughout the nation in 1976, Princeton University is working in close cooperation with the community to plan specific events as well as to prepare for substantially increased numbers of visitors to the area. A number of special lectures, exhibits, publications and other events related to the bicentennial have already been planned and the first of these will occur with the start of the new academic year.

Time Extended. Committee also wants to permit a one-year interval between the granting of a use variance and the application for a building permit. The present limit is six months. The measure must go to the Planning Board for consideration.

A third ordinance requires a developer to get preliminary approval from the county engineer of the capacity and design of any culvert the developer has to install. Otherwise, no preliminary plot approval.

Committee member William Sutphin, father of the ordinance, said he'd discovered that the 1959 Terhune culvert had never had either county or state approval. Mercer County will only take over jurisdiction and maintenance of culverts built according to county specifications.

"Mr. Sutphin's homework will plug a big hole...." began Mayor Bleiman, but Committee member Elizabeth Hutter, another culvert expert on committee, laughed and said, "No! Not plug it—open it up!"

She abstained in the vote. Later, Mrs. Hutter said that although there is a distinct cost savings advantage in having the county maintain culverts, she isn't sure each and every culvert needs to be constructed to county specifications, which invariably call for larger culverts.

"I would like to see some public discussion of this matter," she said. Public hearing is September 22.

Public Hearing Set. An ordinance extending a sewer to Autumn Hill Road, recommended by the Board of Health, was also introduced. Mayor Bleiman emphasized that this has nothing to do with a main Autumn Hill Road sewer, which many residents of the area object to strongly. Public hearing Sept. 8.

Hospital volunteers will staff the store's sale area again this year during the 9:30 to noon event.

Get There Early. "Our community benefit rummage sale accomplishes what we want it to accomplish," Mr. Landau says. "We clear out every remaining piece of summer merchandise while donating a substantial amount of money to benefit the entire community."

"The Medical Center at Princeton serves everybody in the community sooner or later and in some way or another. We sponsor the senior citizens' picnic because that, too, touches every family."

Last year's sale brought approximately $2,500 to the Medical Center for use in the varied health care programs offered to the community. This year, both Mr. Landau and the volunteer squad, are determined to do even better.

"If it's anything like last year's sale," Mr. Landau says, "we suggest you get here early."

NO ROACHES

At Nassau Inn. State Department of Health restaurant inspection forms provide a single space to note evidence of roaches, vermin or flies, and that's the space checked by an inspector in a recent tour of the Nassau Inn kitchen. The check was noted in last week's TOWN TOPICS story on health inspections.

However, Fred Blaicher, president of Palmer Square Inc., which owns the Nassau Inn, points out that only flies were present. The Inn does not have roaches or vermin, Mr. Blaicher says suggesting that the state modify and clarify its inspection forms.

not exactly something for nothing. Shoppers seeking bargains this Saturday morning at Landau's annual rummage sale will have to pay at least a portion of their purchases' value.

It's more like "everything for something," with the receipts of every purchase going to benefit the entire Princeton area community through the annual picnic for area senior citizens or a contribution to the Medical Center at Princeton.

The bargains themselves—all merchandise from the counters and racks of Landau's—are offered at a tiny fraction of their original price.

"We'll have $30 slacks on sale for about $3," says Robert Landau, "and other bargains similar to that. We take all the merchandise left after our summer sale, mark the prices way down, then turn over all the day's receipts—less the cost of the senior citizen's picnic—to the Medical Center."

BY THEIR OWN circulation figures, no other newspaper comes close to matching TOWN TOPICS' ability to take your advertising into every home served by the Princeton Post Office.

NEW MAN ON JOB
In Township Hall. Township Committee welcomed a new Assistant Administrator Monday night and introduced him to the excitement of municipal government by processing a package of zoning and planning ordinances.

Michael Taylor replaces Girard Miller in the Assistant Administrator's job. He earned an M.A. in public administration in 1973 at Temple University (B.A. from St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia) and worked for Brick Township in New Jersey, before accepting the Princeton Township post. Mayor Jay Bleiman told the audience that Mr. Taylor had been regimental boxing champion at the Merchant Marine Academy during a tour of duty there.

Under one new ordinance, a developer won't have to complete site plans first, before applying for a use variance from the Zoning Board. (Applicants, however, will be encouraged to complete these plans first.) Also, the Planning Board must be notified 20 days in advance before a use variance comes before the Zoning Board.

Applicants have been going before the Zoning Board with all their planning details said Committeeman Abbot Low Moffat, "It would be helpful if the Zoning Board accepted only the application for a use variance, with no details other than that. Then, the applicant could go on to site plan, with details. That's what Joe Shinn (zoning officer) has been recommending."

Mr. Moffat said Planning and Zoning Boards should confer on procedures that everyone can—and will—follow, to carry the ordinance several steps farther. Public hearing Monday, September 22.

COASTER KID ROLLS ON
And On And On And On. Tell us, Michael, when exactly did you first experience this...uh...this fascination for roller coasters?

Princeton High School graduate Michael Boodley may not be able to explain why he likes roller coasters so much, and we might not be able to understand his explanation even if he had one. But he cannot forget the time he first became fascinated with the dizzying turns and breath-taking plunges common to the roller coaster. That was when he was six years old and took his very first ride on the Comet in Hershey Park, Hershey, Pa.

Ever since then, Michael has harbored, well, an obsession with roller coasters. Last week the self-proclaimed roller coaster "nut" reached the pinnacle of his career: He rode Coney Island's Cyclone roller coaster 1,000 consecutive times, beginning at 1 p.m. Tuesday and ending at 10 a.m. Thursday.

In the process he covered 660 miles and broke the record currently listed in the Guinness Book of Records.

Michael's feat generated major media attention in New York and has made several other roller coaster enthusiasts consider attempts of their own to break Michael's record.

"Quite a Ride." Spokesmen for the Guinness Book of Records said that someone from Kansas was contemplating a record run, and Michael was told by several friends that they too might try to break the record. Said the reigning roller coaster champion: "I doubt they'll break it. It's quite a ride."

After the maiden run at age six, Michael just couldn't have enough roller coaster rides. By age eight he was building roller coasters in the backyard of his home on Village Road, Dutch Neck, using waste baskets equipped with roller skates as cars. On weekends and vacations the Boodley family traveled throughout the Eastern seaboard, always in search of the ultimate roller coaster.

This summer, following graduation from PHS, Michael got a job—running a roller coaster at the Great Adventure amusement park. He will begin classes at Mercer County Community College this fall, and he eventually hopes to earn a degree in mechanical engineering.

What then? Design and build roller coasters, naturally. Is there a market for roller coasters? "Definitely," Michael said. "They're making a big comeback. No one can afford to go to Europe anymore so the amusement parks are picking up again."

Cyclone Tops. Until Michael builds a better one, the 3,200-foot Coney Island Cyclone will probably stand as his favorite roller coaster. That's why he picked the Cyclone for his assault on the world record.

Helping him maintain the records required by the Guinness people were his father, Lewis, a design engineer at the RCA Astro Division; his mother, Bess, who has never been on a roller coaster ride; and a handful of friends from Dutch Neck and Princeton High School.

Mrs. Boodley also kept handy a supply of yogurt, sandwiches, water, and canned fruit juice for her son, who is a diabetic. By the end of his run, Michael was black and blue from bruises caused by being thrown from side to side of the car and "practically delirious" from lack of sleep.

Otherwise he was in fine spirits and good health—and eager to get on another roller coaster ride. Would he consider trying for another record? "If someone breaks mine then I's probably do it again," he said. "But not on the Cyclone. That's just too rough."

$500 TOOLBOX TAKEN
From Township Home. A metal tool box containing assorted tools valued at $500 and a $240 portable air compressor were stolen last week from a garage attached to the home of John A. Sly, 464 Ewing Street.

There were no signs of forced entry. Police report the theft occurred between Thursday and Saturday.

In one of two larcenies from cars last week in the Township, Donald Cocker, Mohegan Lake, N.Y. reported $740 in radio equipment stolen from his car parked in the lot next to the Princeton University boat house off Washington Road. Included were a citizens' band radio set valued at $400 and a $200 cassette tape deck. The car was forced open.

Lawrence Miller, 29 Clay Street, lost $15 after someone pried open the glove compartment of his unlocked car and removed his wallet.

Police said that the car had been parked between 5 and 5:40 Friday afternoon at the Community Park lot off John Street. Ptl. David Funk investigated.

SPEAKERS RECOVERED
Two Men Charged. Borough police have charged two men with possession of two stereo speakers valued at $630 which were stolen last week from Quadrangle Club, 33 Prospect Avenue.

Charged are James Ward, 21, of Birch Avenue, and Edward Vernon, Jr., 23, of Alexander Street. In addition, both have been charged with possession of narcotic paraphernalia. Their car was also impounded by police when it was found to be unregistered.

Ward and Vernon were arraigned in Borough court before Judge Philip Carchman and later released. They are scheduled to appear September 3.

Borough police were first alerted at 4 p.m. Thursday when they received a call from the Club that a robbery was in progress on the first floor. The caller supplied police with a description of two suspects and a description of their car including the registration number. Ptl. David Alston and Ptl. John Holcombe responded in two patrol cars.

A fireman, who had heard the description over a monitor in his car, followed the suspects' car to Franklin Avenue. It was subsequently stopped on Franklin by Det. Charles Harris and Ptl. Anthony Gaylord of the Township. The two occupants were transported to Borough

GIRL 8, IS VICTIM Of Purse-snatcher. An eight-year old Borough girl became probably the youngest purse-snatching victim in the community Saturday afternoon when she had her purse grabbed by a youth as she was walking in an alley off Nassau Street between the Thorne Pharmacy and the Country Mouse.

Chief Michael Carnevale reported that the victim was visibly shaken by the incident. Although she was alone at the time, he said, her mother was in the general area. The purse, valued at $7, contained $2.

According to police, the suspect approached the girl from the front, grabbed her purse and ran off through the Park Place lot. He was described as 13 to 15, under five feet tall, medium stature with short hair, wearing blue jeans, a yellow shirt with pink design and carrying a red sun visor.

Ptl. Bernard Lenhardt is investigating.

STUDENT ATTACKED On College Road. A female Graduate School student was attacked at 11:32 p.m. last week while she was walking on College Road.

"It seems to be clear that this was a sex-related attack and not one for money," commented Chief Michael Carnevale. He added that the victim did not require medical treatment.

Police report that a man about 17 followed the victim, passed her and then abruptly turned. As he came toward her, he attempted to cover her mouth with his hand and the victim fell to the ground.

He lunged at her. She cried out for help and kicked at her attacker, "creating a lot of commotion," police said, which caused him to run off.

He was described as 17 to 20, 5-6, slender, with brown short curly hair, wearing blue jeans, light blue shirt and blue sneakers with a white stripe. The initial investigation by Ptl. Peter Hanley and Ptl. William Clark is being continued by Det. Charles Harris.

Assault Attempt. A little more than an hour earlier the same night there was an assault with attempt to rob on Bank Street.

A 17-year old Princeton youth, police said, was grabbed by two men as he walked along Bank at 10:18. They began to grapple with him and tried to reach in his pockets for money, threatening him with a knife. The youth resisted and the pair fled. Police report they were unable to obtain any descriptions.

DRAMATIC READING SET On Revolutionary Women. A dramatic reading entitled "Forgotten Women of the Revolution" will be presented Tuesday evening in Palmer Square at 5 and again at 7.

The program will be based on the varying roles women played during the Revolutionary War period. Folk singer Caroline Moseley and John Macdonald will present a selection of songs of the period. The costumed program is being held under the auspices of the Princeton Chapter of NOW. In case of rain, the program will move indoors to the Nassau Inn.

Correction

In last week's advertisement for Tech HiFi, 1 Palmer Square and 2901 Brunswick Circle, the price of the smaller of the two Advent speakers listed should have been $89.

Poor Showing

To the Editor of Town Topics:

On Monday night, August 11, my husband and I went to the Garden Theater to see Peter Benchley's story on the screen, "Jaws". Having read the book and the sitrting reviews of this exciting thriller, I waited with great anticipation for the movie to start - which it did, promptly at 7:30.

From the start of the movie and for at least 20-30 minutes, the picture was blurry, prompting several people in the audience to shout loudly and clearly, "Focus". Besides the annoyance of a blurred picture, the audience endured four blackouts of the movie - the sound continued, but no picture.

I find these incidents deplorable and unnecessary at any movie show, but especially so in such a suspenseful picture such as "Jaws" in which every scene leads slowly to the exciting climax.

At $3 per customer, I should think that the management of the Garden Theater could make sure that their projector is working properly.

Unsubstantiated Accusations.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

In response to Mark M. Jones' letter of August 7, I would like to point out that the accusations against the "education labor racket" of "extortion," "embezzlement" and "legal stealing" are completely unsubstantiated. If Mr. Jones had shown results of any studies he had conducted of the responsibilities of the individual administrators of the Princeton Regional School System, or even if he had given proof of such studies, his accusations would not seem so thoughtlessly arrogant.

Furthermore, I suggest that Mr. Jones look to see how Princeton schools compare with others before claiming we have "education (sic) that does not educate." I have spent 11 years in the Princeton public schools and I am extremely pleased with and proud of the quality of education I have received.

Lastly, although I could continue to point out the total lack of logic in Mr. Jones' arguments, I cannot understand his indignation at the $50,000 per year providing for clerks, secretaries etc. Considering the number of essential people employed in these capacities, it is amazing this sum is so small, particularly since it is not all used for salaries.

Obviously, if nothing else, my education has taught me to question.

Integration Welcomed.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Creative Theatre Unlimited recently held a performance of a children's play, "You, Alice and Me." This performance was open to all, but specific invitation was given to handicapped children in the area. I would like to commend Creative Theatre for its receptivity and empathy towards handicapped children and trust that these feelings will be disbursed to old and young alike.

I think it important to see more of this spirit abound in the Princeton community. There is a need to hold public performances with "mixed" audiences of handicapped individuals and those who are not.

Such integration enables us to understand better the problems faced by our handicapped brothers and sisters. It is relatively easy to "give at the office" but the true spirit of concern is made evident through a willingness to share in the day to day struggles of those less fortunate than ourselves.

Thank you, Creative Theatre, for caring.

DAVID L. HOLMES, Director

In the Community's Service.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Once again this reader feels compelled to speak up in support of radio station WHWH in response to the letter of Rosalind Frisch, TOWN TOPICS Mailbox, August 14. She wishes that the radio station would ask its audience if they are interested in hearing "candidates for local offices, debates airing all sides of issues, investigative reporting, substantive interviews with office holders and personages of controversy etc." Ms. Frisch is evidently unaware that WHWH did broadcast "candidates night" last fall when the various candidates for local and regional office debated the issues in the auditorium of the Witherspoon School. She is evidently also unaware that when WHWH announced its support of specific candidates it offered and provided equal time to all of the candidates for those offices to discuss their views of the issues.

Ms. Frisch is apparently not aware that WHWH has broadcast, regularly, the Rutgers University Forum which discusses many of the topics to which she refers. Other views on political subjects have been provided on a regular program, moderated by a local office holder, entitled "Politics Is Not A Dirty Word." If she has children she should be interested in a WHWH program, "Youth Speaks Out", in which representatives of the younger population of Princeton express their views on a great variety of topics. If it is investigative reporting Ms. Frisch desires she might listen to "The Wall" which consists of interviews with inmates of prisons in the Trenton area.

In short, this reader believes that WHWH is doing an outstanding job of providing the community with well balanced programming of the kind Ms. Frisch likes to hear, in addition to local and world news, entertainment to satisfy a broad range of tastes and public services, which includes free announcements of activities of local non-profit organizations, and even locating lost pets and their owners.

In conclusion I must repeat that I have no connection, or dealings of any kind, with WHWH. I have known Mr. Hobler, slightly, for many years and can assure Ms. Frisch that he has plenty of courage to express his own views, on the offensive as well as on the defensive, and I believe he deserves to be commended for operating WHWH in the public interest.

THEFT AND VANDALISM

At Sewer Plant. The main building of the Borough-owned sewer plant on River Road was the target of theft and malicious damage during the weekend.

Township police report that a pane of glass was broken to gain entry. Stolen, they said, were three pipe holders, four metal lockers and a metal tube rack holder. No value was reported by the Borough.

New Era Begins: Only Princeton Pupils in Princeton Schools

This September, for the first time in history, Princeton High School will have only Princeton students.

Enrollment at the high school is expected to be down from last September by 152 to 1,081, reflecting chiefly the departure this June of the last of the West Windsor-Plainsboro students. (And the departure from the budget of the last of their tuition.) Residents of those two townships now attend their own handsome new high school in West Windsor.

Over the years, Princeton High's old brick and stone building and its various expansions have held and nurtured the young of two Princetons, West Windsor, Plainsboro, Montgomery Township, Rocky Hill, Lawrence Township, South Brunswick Township, Franklin Township and the Borough

There was also damage to locks and to other lockers in the building, police said. Pt. David Wilbur is investigating.

In the Borough, a Broadmead resident reported the theft of an $85 3-speed bicycle last week from a front yard (the bike was not locked) and a Township resident lost $52 when her wallet was stolen at the lower Nassau Street branch of the First National Bank.

Police report the victim had placed her wallet on a countertop near the bank entrance and had left it while she transacted business.

TEN ARE FINED

In Borough Traffic Court. Ten Princeton area residents were fined Monday in Borough traffic court.

Carolyn S. Critz, 244 Nassau Street, was fined $35 for leaving the scene of an accident and $20 as an unlicensed driver. Ms. Critz, who denied the first charge, was represented by attorney Gordon C. Strauss.

Fined for speeding were Robert L. Jones, Camp Meeting Road, Skillman, $17; Michael D. Boccanfuso, 56 Fisher Avenue, $32; Sarah M. Bolster, 124 Parkside Drive, $16; Jeffrey D. Laplante, 46 Griggstown Road, Belle Mead, $15; and William L. Warren, 92 Snowden Lane, $15. Katherine J. Barry, 193 Elm Road, and Michael Y. Logan, 109 Linden Lane, paid $25 each for careless driving.

Mary L. Kiefer, 107 Leigh Avenue, was fined $25 and ordered to take a driver re-examination after she pleaded guilty to failing to stop at a flashing red signal. A late inspection violation cost Lee A. Ranallo, 437 Ewing Street, $10.

BIRTHS LISTED

Twenty-Three Are Born. The births of 13 girls and 10 boys were reported last week by the Princeton Medical Center.

Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Huzzy, 221 Morrison Avenue, Hightstown; Mr. and Mrs. George Pappas, 13½ Fairway Drive, Toms River; Mr. and Mrs. Steve Setteri, 2-12 Tall Tree Apartments, Jamesburg, all August 10; Mr. and Mrs. Narendra Mankad, 302 Brookwood Gardens, East Windsor; Mr. and Mrs. William Westbrook, 9 Hillside Road, Lawrenceville, both August 11; and Mr. and Mrs. John R. Guthrie, 425 Stockton Street, Hightstown, August 12.

Also to Mr. and Mrs. Jose Alcantara, Northgate Apartments, Cranbury; Mr. and Mrs. David R. Fraytak, 812 Melrose Avenue, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nuttall, 53 Sunset Boulevard, Hamilton Square, all August 13; Mr. and Mrs. Gill Halliez, 11 Darrah Lane, Lawrenceville; and Mr. Charles Miller, 20 Winnipeg Lane, of Hopewell, for many of those years, all at the same time.

The school population for Princeton as a whole is estimated at 3,426 this year, down 160 from last September's enrollment, down 132 from the figure in June. Elementary grades have dropped by 52, but there is an increase of 44 pupils at the middle-school level.

Newcomers to PHS this year—including ninth graders and students new to the community—will gather on Tuesday, September 2, one day before the opening of school, for a special orientation program in the auditorium of the school at 1:15.

Todd Zapolski, Student Council president, will introduce student officers and the high school administration. Then students will follow, on an abbreviated basis, their regular schedule.

Lawrenceville, both August 15; Mr. and Mrs. David Jackson, 18 Warren Street, Jamesburg; and Mr. and Mrs. David F. Johnston, 3 Marksboro Way, Trenton, both August 16.

Sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Yeh-Yu Hsieh, 11 Yeger Road, Cranbury; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stein, 953 Jamestown Road, East Windsor, both August 11; Mr. and Mrs. Vladislav Karicek, 11 Hart Avenue, Hopewell, August 12; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jarrow, 24 Aldrich Road, Kendall Park, August 13; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cohen, 552 Nettleton Drive, East Windsor; and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Pinsky, 10 Buckingham Road, Mount Holly, both August 14.

Also to Mr. and Mrs. Tilden Edelstein, 60 North Sixth Avenue, Highland Park, August 15; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Aronson, 72 Garrison Place, East Windsor; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Greenberg, 10 Stafford Road, Monmouth Junction; and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Kale, 137 Carter Road, all August 16.

COLONIAL FAIR SET

At Washington's Crossing. The fourth annual "Colonial Fair" sponsored by the Washington Crossing Association of New Jersey will be held on Saturday, September 6, and Sunday, September 7, from 10 to 5 in Sullivan Grove, located in the New Jersey Washington Crossing State Park.

Featured on Sunday from 1 to 3 will be an antique appraisal session held by Lester Slatoff, auctioneer and lecturer on antiques. Each person may bring two items ($1.50 appraisal charge for each item).

Lee Vegotsky will present a diorama eight feet long of Washington's March along Jacob's Creek Road to Trenton on December 26, 1776.

There will be demonstrations of colonial crafts including bookbinding, blacksmithing, natural wool dyeing, wood carving, cornshuck dolls, gunsmithing, silhouette cutting, beekeeping and many more authentic Colonial crafts performed and demonstrated by those whose expertise and knowledge has been passed from generation to generation. Fine crafts of a more contemporary nature will be featured, also, including lead glass figures and terrariums, enamelled copperware, macrame, lapidary, decoupage and blown glass.

The "Country Store" will sell apples, sharp cheese, penny candy, homemade baked goods and historical souvenirs. A section will also be devoted to modern-day refreshments. A magician will be on hand to entertain children of all ages on Sunday.

Military demonstrations on both days in the morning and again in the afternoon will be performed by the Egg Harbor Guard, Lamb's Artillery and the 42nd Royal Highland Regiment famed "Black Watch" complete with drums and pipes. Other special features include open hearth cooking, stage coach rides, making apple cider and storytelling.

Open to the public and only a short walk from the Fair is the Ferry House and Flag Museum. The Ferry House was the gathering place for Washington's Army following the crossing of the Delaware on Christmas night, 1776.

The Flag Museum which is maintained and operated by the Washington Crossing Association tells the history of the development of our flag. It also houses three narrated dioramas which relate the events of the ten days crucial to America's struggle for independence starting with the crossing of the Delaware December 25, 1776 through the Battle of Princeton January 3, 1777.

Visitors returning to the Fair following their tour of the Ferry House and the Flag Museum will find it appropriate to walk back by way of "Continental Lane". Posted at the entrance are the names of the units of Washington's Army that, following the crossing of the Delaware that historic night, commenced their march to the Battle of Trenton along this route.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY

For Twin W First Aid. This Thursday will mark the third anniversary of the Twin W First Aid Squad, Inc. of West Windsor Township. During this time, the Squad has answered an average of one call a day.

A duty crew has been ready to answer a request for help 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The Squad has provided first aid courses for the community through the Red Cross trained instructors who belong to Twin W.

During these past three years of service to the community, the Twin W Squad, through the generosity of its friends and neighbors, has acquired three fully-equipped ambulances and sophisticated equipment to aid it in its service. The Twin W now has an Associate membership which provides fund raising and other supportive services to the Squad. Twin W also has a Cadet Corps of first aiders between 16 and 18 who are as fully trained as their adult counterparts and help provide first aid assistance to the community.

The Squad has recently acquired a piece of land on which its proposed future home will be built. Though this building is some years away, the Squad points out that it will continue to provide the finest in training and services to its community.

School Lunch Prices Will Be 5¢ Higher

The price of a school lunch will jump a nickel, but milk will still be five cents.

That's the word from the cashier this week, as school-lunch time draws near. Elementary school children will pay 55 cents instead of 50 cents, middle school children will pay 60 cents instead of 55 cents and high school students, 65 cents instead of 60 cents.

Nobody makes money on school lunches. The Princeton Regional School system underwrites the program at a cost of $20,000 a year. There is a Federal subsidy of $88,000; an intake of $143,000 from students paying their own way, $10,000 more from teachers and other staff who buy their lunch. In addition there is $62,000 from snacks: potato chips, ice-cream, milk and so on, bought by students who brown-bag their lunch but want a bit more.

Milk gets a live-cent state subsidy. Kids pay five cents, but actual cost is a fraction under ten cents, according to business administrator Ronald Novak, so the schools recover some of the handling charges.

Bon appetit!

OBITUARIES

Augusta Grover Anderson Saville, 80, of Mount Rose Road, Pennington, died August 17 at the Merwick Unit of the Princeton Medical Center.

Born in Hightstown, Mrs. Saville lived in Princeton from 1902 until moving to Pennington in 1942. She was one of the founders of the Princeton Hospital Aid Shop and was a Red Cross nurse's aide from 1942 to 1955.

She was a member of the Hospital Aid Committee, serving as president from 1939 to 1946. In 1956 she was made an honorary member of that committee. She also did volunteer work at Fort Dix, caring for wounded during World War II. She was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Her first husband, T. Hart Anderson Jr., died in 1965. She is survived by her husband, George Saville; a son, Thomas Hart Anderson III of Hopewell; two daughters, Mrs. Barbara Rulon-Miller of New York City and Mrs. Elizabeth Jessup of Atherton, Calif.; eight grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held Tuesday at noon at the Nassau Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Robert A. Beringer of the 1st Presbyterian Church of Hopewell will officiate. Interment will be at the convenience of the family. Contributions may be made to the coronary unit of the Medical Center.

Jeffrey P. Clinton, 18, Naperville, Illinois, died August 13. His maternal grandparents are Dr. and Mrs. Paul R. Chesebro of 170 Moore Street.

Also surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Clinton; a brother, Jonathan; a sister, Betsy; his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Lillian Clinton of Cranbury and an uncle, Robert Clinton, of Princeton. His paternal grandfather was the late Edward J. Clinton.

A memorial service was at the Reformed Church in Naperville. Donations may be made to the Hun School Memorial Fund.

Albert E. Renaud, 84, of 18 Wood Hollow Road, West Windsor, died August 15 in the Princeton Medical Center. He was a retired stock clerk with Stern and Stern in New York.

Husband of the late Delphine Hoffmann Renaud, he is survived by two sons, Albert E. Renaud III of Baltimore, and Calvin R. Renaud of West Windsor, with whom he resided; 15 grandchildren; and one great-grandson.

The funeral was held in Hightstown. Burial was in Evergreen Cemetery, Brooklyn, N.Y.

again be held at the New Jersey State Fair on Route 33, Hamilton Township, from Friday, September 12, through Sunday, September 21.

The Miss New Jersey State Fair Pageant will be held opening day and the Miss Italian America Pageant the evening of September 16.

Both pageants are open to young women between the ages of 17 and 25. Miss New Jersey State Fair applicants must be residents of the Garden State, while contestants for the Miss Italian America Pageant must be of Italian ancestry on either the mother or father's side of the family. Entrants for the latter may reside anywhere in the U.S.

The winners in both pageants will receive merchandise and gifts and other prizes plus a silver trophy. Runners-up in both contests will receive trophies. Applications for both pageants may be obtained by writing to New Jersey State Fair, PO Box 669, Trenton.

POOL PARTY SUNDAY

By Montgomery Democrats. The Montgomery Democratic Club will hold a pool party on Sunday from 2 to 5 at the home of Charles and Gwynne Sams, 29-A Jamestown Road. Those interested are invited, together with their children.

It will be an informal afternoon with swimming, volley ball and badminton, as well as an opportunity for voters to meet and talk with Eric Perkins, Democratic candidate for Township Committee. Light refreshments will be served.

In case of rain, the alternate date is Sunday, August 31. Further information may be obtained by calling 201-359-3782.

Naval, Military, Air Force, and Merchant Marine Academies for the classes entering in the summer of 1976. For those unable to take the September 27 test, there will be a Makeup Test on Thursday, October 30.

This examination is open to legal residents of the state of New Jersey. New applicants who wish to take the test should write to Senator Case, Russell Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510. All candidates must be at least 17 years old, but not past their 22nd birthday, on July 1, 1976 in order to be eligible for admission to one of the academies.

Senator Case had one appointment to fill at the Military Academy, one at the Air Force Academy and one at the Naval Academy. Ten nominees, a principal and nine alternates, will be chosen for each vacancy. All candidates are required by the Academic Boards of the respective academies to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test or the American College Test, as well as a medical and physical aptitude examination. All candidates, except the qualified principal, will be evaluated and ranked in order of merit by the Academic Boards for possible selection for alternate appointments to the academies.

The State of New Jersey is allocated ten vacancies for the class entering the Merchant Marine Academy in 1976. Ten young men will be authorized to compete for the vacancies existing at this academy.

CHAIR ENDOWED

In Hispanic Studies. The Good Samaritan Foundation of Wilmington, Delaware has awarded $750,000 to Princeton University to endow the Walter S. Carpenter, Jr. Professorship in the Language, Literature, and Civilization of Spain.

This grant, named for one of the trustees of the Good Samaritan Foundation, will help to ensure that the im-

THE TRIP TO RUSSIA

This will be the last report for about a month, because I am going on an official trip to Russia and Romania. The United States government, some time ago, agreed to an exchange of visits between Soviet and American legislators. Early in July the Senators went and now the House of Representatives is sending its delegation.

The Speaker of the House, Carl Albert of Oklahoma, asked me to be one of the group. We plan to go to Moscow, Leningrad and Simferopol, then from Russia to Romania. It should be a most interesting trip, but, most of all, I hope it will be useful.

I have been in touch with constituents in the 5th District who have relatives and friends in Russia and Romania and are anxious for news of them and I hope to be useful in that regard. I hope to see representatives of the clergy of all faiths, also, to understand a little more clearly what the conditions are in both countries, and to contribute in any way we can to bolster and encourage religious and civil liberties.

One always leaves for a new place with certain preconceptions, drawn from 19th century books, and modern newspaper and T.V. reports. The birch woods and onion domes of Russia -- the immense plains -- the rich Ukraine -- it is hard to believe they will soon be more than vivid descriptions by Russia's great writers of the past.

Against this background, we will be concerned with the question of disarmament, and trade, and areas such as the Indian Ocean, the Persian Gulf, the Mediterranean, Korea and other places in the world which are in the news. There may be direct and substantive discussions, or perhaps we will receive no more than hints or suggestions from the officials we meet. But by omission, as much as by mention, of certain topics one can sometimes sense the issues regarded as most sensitive. Finally, I think it is important to decide how these matters should be faced and I am convinced that anyone who goes to these countries on an official visit should approach it in such a way as to combine discretion and courtesy with absolute frankness. It would be a mistake, I think, to conceal the very live interest of American citizens in humanitarian questions.

The legislators of both Russia and Romania, are, I am sure, as aware as we are of the dangers of war, but if we can take this for granted we must nevertheless not allow any impression that the freedom and rights of individuals can be left aside or ignored. As has been said before, "War is unthinkable" and certainly in that hope and belief, we will be embarking upon this journey. If it contributes to that end, if it helps a few individuals and makes clear our commitment to human rights, it will have been a success.

portant field of Spanish studies will continue to be cultivated by scholars of the highest distinction.

Commenting on the grant, President William G. Bowen said: "Endowed professorships such as the Good Samaritan Foundation has provided for hispanic studies at Princeton make a crucial difference to the quality of our faculty. This particular professorship will support teaching and research in an important field in which Princeton has considerable strength. We are grateful indeed for the opportunities that the Foundation's magnanimity will make possible."

The establishment of the professorship will also help make certain that the heritage of Americo Castro, one of Spain's great scholars and a former professor at Princeton, continues to receive the attention it deserves. Dr. Castro's work at Princeton represented a significant step forward in the understanding of the Spaniards' concern with their special character as a people.

PHS Physicals Set

Norman Van Arsdalen, Princeton High School athletic administrator, has announced the following dates and times for physical examinations for all PHS fall teams:

They are Tuesday from 1 to 3 for football candidates; Wednesday from 1 to 3 for cross country and soccer candidates; and next Thursday, August 28, from 1 to 3 for girls' athletics--soccer, field hockey and cheerleading.

All prospective candidates, ninth through twelfth grades, must have a physical examination by the school physician before reporting for any practice session.

The establishment of the professorship will also help stabilize, but the majority of Americans, according to a recent survey by Opinion Research Corporation of North Harrison Street, either see no letup or expect an increase in the amount of joblessness in the next year.

In a telephone survey of a national probability sample of 1,222 adults age 18 and over, people were asked to make a choice as to the country's most important problem from among inflation, the energy shortage, and rising unemployment. Over six persons in ten cite unemployment, as compared with 25 percent who cite inflation and 8 percent who cite the energy shortage. These figures have remained relatively constant over the past six months.

In more than 13 million households -- or about one out of every five households in the nation -- at least some family member is reported to have been unemployed during the past six months. Younger people, non-whites, and those in union households have been hit particularly hard.

The majority of Americans at all levels of society also believe that unemployment will either continue at its current level or increase over the next year. Such pessimism on the part of the public is in line with the view of many experts who think that unemployment, as a new characteristic of an affluent United States, is likely to persist beyond the current business recession.

Concern over unemployment is such that more people now favor government spending designed to ease unemployment than believe the government should hold spending down and economize. This represents a sharp change in public opinion since the beginning of this decade, according to ORC.

Q. Is any 1975 car actually worth the money?

If value is a question of dollars and sense, the Audi 100LS is unquestionably the answer. Because the Germans had one thing in mind when they created the Audi: a fine machine at a reasonable price.

You won't find flash or frills, you'll find a quiet understated elegance: a full-sized car that comfortably carries five, the luxury of legroom and headroom of some cars twice the price, orthopedically-designed reclining seats.

And you'll find superb engineering. To front-wheel drive, rack-and-pinion steering and independent front suspension, we've added outboard vented disc brakes for less possibility of fade. We've added negative steering-roll radius to enable the Audi to self-correct in a front-wheel blowout and help maintain directional stability. And we've added fuel injection for easier starts, smoother acceleration and better gas mileage. Now the Audi gets 28 miles to the gallon* on the highway.

At $5835, it's exactly what it was created to be: a fine machine at a reasonable price. There's simply no question about it.

*EPA's Uniformed Driving Program. Highway 100 miles per gallon. City 24 mpg. Combined 28 mpg. Actual mileage may vary.

The answer is Audi

In the Bedens Brook Area

Just a few minutes from downtown Princeton yet hidden away in a private country setting is a fantastic California ranch with a creatively designed floorplan. At one end of this lovely home is a heated indoor swimming pool with flagstone patio and sauna, while at the other is a delightful master suite that can be cordoned off for either long-term guests, or an in-law arrangement. Both the huge flagstone library-study and the family room have their own fireplace while the kitchen and living room have a view of the pool. There are four or five bedrooms in all and four full baths. When winter comes this year, you can love it or leave it without even leaving your home. Why settle for less? $109,000

Princeton's Newest Listing

This immense split colonial in the Bertrand Drive area has just come on the market in time for fall and the opening of schools. Lovingly cared for and tastefully decorated, it boasts an inviting foyer with guest closet, living room with colonial fireplace, separate dining room, comfortable and convenient country kitchen, spacious carpeted family room and a good size basement for recreation and hobbies. Upstairs, are four large bedrooms including a separate master suite with its own large closet areas and full bath. Move in in time for school's opening. $84,900

Too Good to Keep Under Cover

Some houses have elegance written all over them. Sometimes its the proportions, sometimes its the setting, and sometimes its the precise detail of the style. In this case it's all three. Inside, the great front to back living room, elegant formal dining room, and rustic family room or library with raised hearth are set in a highly workable arrangement of formal and casual living areas. Upstairs, there is an airy master bedroom suite with private bath as well as three other comfortable bedrooms. A wonderful house for a dinner party in a location near the country club that's hard to beat. $78,500

A Rare Find on a Wooded West Windsor Cul-de-Sac

WEST WINDSOR
In suburban West Windsor so convenient for the commuter this offering is a traditional center hall colonial. Built only five years ago the house has been beautifully maintained; the property has been superbly landscaped. The brick terrace overlooking the rear garden is particularly attractive. Formal living and dining rooms, informal family room with fireplace, four bedrooms and two and a half baths. $70,500.

LAWRENCE TOWNSHIP
An authentic, beautifully designed 18th Century house which has been improved and modernized over the years. There are over thirteen acres of lawn, trees, and gardens plus a landscaped terrace and in-ground swimming pool.
The formal entrance hall opens to a large drawing room with two fireplaces, a formal dining room, pantry, kitchen and service areas. The second floor contains a library, the master suite, and three more bedrooms and two baths.
A particularly attractive offering at $210,000.

PRINCETON TOWNSHIP
A lovely half acre mini-estate set within beautifully naturalized woods near Olden and Lovers Lane. This property offers complete privacy and country solitude yet is convenient to the center of town. The house was designed and decorated for the present owner, and has been maintained by her in exquisite condition. Living, dining, panelled study, a particularly desirable kitchen and breakfast room overlooking an intimate garden patio. Also four bedrooms and three baths. $148,500.

ROCKY HILL
A large frame house in Dutch Colonial style. There are five bedrooms and three baths in this spacious easily maintained home. A special feature of this country acre is the heated in-ground swimming pool.
Being listed now at $85,000.

COUNTRY PROPERTIES
Over nine acres in Princeton Township, the property is elevated and beautifully wooded. $75,000
Nearby Somerset County, eighty acres with an early 18th Century farmhouse. $225,000
Farm land, now being re-zoned as residential. Eighty-two acres available. $300,000

A butter crock, large white covered, aesthetically pleasing lines. Seems they used to put in the well or stream to keep butter cool. Sort of early type of insulation. Matching pair of jugs, with blue lines. While we don't advocate conversions generally, these would make a perfect pair of lamps. Pennsylvania pine cradle and an early wicker with hood. Washington Irving's Rip Van Winkle, illustrated by Everett Shinn. A child's rocker from Virginia, for a child up to four or five, newly refinished and re-rushed. Thirty Favorite Paintings, published 1908 by P.F. Collier. This includes two Remingtons, two Jesse Willcox Smiths, two A.B. Frosts, Maxfield Parrish, three Harrison Fisher, Howard Chandler Christy, Charles Dana Gibson, among others. They are quite large.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE...

AN ESPECIALLY LOVELY PRINCETON OFFERING....CHARM, GENTILITY, SPACIOUSNESS AND GRACIOUSNESS! Like so many solidly built, older homes ... there is work to be done, but the end result would be magnifique! A curving stairway highlights the center hall, fireplaces are the focal point in the stepdown living room with french doors to the gardens, in the dining room and in the library! And speaking of fireplaces, the master bedroom suite has two bathrooms and each has a fireplace! Think of the luxury ... think of the fun, too! A secluded lot bordering one of the area's finest estates ... yet within walking distance of everything. Please call us for an appointment to see this really exclusive property as soon as possible.

A VERY SPECIAL HOUSE...

FOR ONLY $85,000

A particularly lovely house set high on a generously wooded lot with professional landscaping. This super clean house, 1 yr. old, has a full dry basement, cent. air., stained woodwork and 6-panel doors throughout, a slate floored entrance foyer, large living and dining rooms, a very pretty eat-in kitchen, cheerful family room with a brick fireplace, 1st floor utility area, and powder room. Upstairs is a spacious, bright master suite including full bath, and 3 other generous bedrooms and a lovely hall bath with double sinks. A semi-enclosed back porch overlooks the very private back yard and deep woods.

A MOST CONVENIENT SPOT IN THE BOROUGH OF PRINCETON. Close to everywhere, on a tree-lined quiet street, within walking distance of the University. Perfect for a professor! Rewired, with an almost new heating system, all copper piping, and really solid with plaster walls. Part of the fenced yard includes a garden and dog run! It reflects the tender loving care it has received ... inside and out! Asking in the low 60's!

WHY NOT BUY A CORNER OF PRINCETON AND HAVE AN INCOME GO ALONG WITH IT... Here is a two-family house with four-car garage just across from the hospital. One side has a fireplace, and both are in good condition. Give us a call and we can discuss income, financing possibilities and the present condition. It has great potential for a qualified buyer

'THERE IS GOING TO BE QUIET IN THIS ROOM!'

'Did I Really Say That?' Dismayed Practice Teacher Asks

"That first day, I stood in one spot the whole class time - leaning against the blackboard. I was afraid if I moved, I'd collapse!"

Amy Shapiro, Princeton University Class of '75, English major, did practice teaching in the Princeton Middle School from March 17 to the end of the year. She taught English and French, in the program developed by the University's Teacher Preparation and Placement office. She is now certified in New Jersey as an English and French teacher.

The Middle School was chosen for her by the University because it's within walking distance of the campus. She had two English classes and three French classes, working in a "house" composed entirely of eighth-graders.

"It's a strange age: some of the kids are so very mature, some are very immature. The boys are shorter than the girls. You don't have as many problems with the girls, but one boy's mature behavior was really great."

"Problems? Well, wise-cracks. The fast kids who are really smart, will be

HI, TEACH! The best way to learn how to teach is to teach. Amy Shapiro, Princeton University's Class of '75, learned how last spring as a practice teacher at John Wither- spoon Middle School.

disruptive - anything to be difficult! One very bright boy - he wrote beautifully - just couldn't sit still. Always had to be cutting up. One time I said to another boy, 'You'd be a terrific stand-up comedian' and this first boy shot right back, 'Yeh, you'd stand up and everybody would start laughing.'

"Then there was one boy in French class, very bright. He was very big in sports in the school and he would sign his name 'Jacques Stroppe.'

Opinions Sought. "I had trouble getting kids to discuss, in English class. I'm not one who believes in 'Read this, and then answer questions 1-10 on page 26.' I want to know what kids think of a short story. But I'd throw out a question for them, one kid would answer, and that would be it - nobody else would speak."

"They were hung up on plots. They could tell you the plot, but they didn't understand how to discuss. A plot is easy to re-tell, but to think about what's happening in a story, to go deeper than the plot, was almost foreign to them. I'd say, 'Don't rehash the plot for me - I know what the plot is, and I know you know it.'"

"The first test I gave had a 'thought question.' We'd been reading 'Animal Farm.' I asked them, 'Is it ever possible to have an equal society? Should the best people be in power, and what should determine what "best" is?'"

"Well, they wanted to know how they were supposed to answer that question. I told them there was no 'right' or 'wrong.'"

"With 'Animal Farm' we did have a discussion. It was about corruption and Nixon and inequality. I checked with the social studies teacher and she told me they'd had the Russian Revolution, so we had a discussion around that. The kids would ask, in 'Animal Farm', is this character meant to be Lenin, or is he Marx?" and some students said the story was more like Hitler's Germany than Russia." "But by the end of the term, they had developed: they showed a greater ability to understand beyond plot, and some of the writing improved."

A Hang Up. "Speaking of Hitler - the boys seemed to be really hung up about Nazi Germany. It's 35 days 'till Hitler's birthday, they'd say. And you know, when I was in eighth grade, boys went in for the same thing, and I talked with a friend who's 35 years old, and he said it was true when he was a kid. Swastika arm-band, saluting each other..."

"I was surprised at the constant nastiness to each other. Calling an Italian kid a 'greaser,' or a kid with dandruff 'snow man.' For a Jewish boy, 'bagel,' or 'bird' for a black boy. But nobody seemed to care - or if they did, they didn't show it. But just try to use those names four years from now, in high school!"

"The fighting I saw was mostly playing. But discipline is lax in the school. The biggest threat you could make was to take a kid to Phil Cobb - the assistant principal."

"I broke up one fight in class, and it was a frightening experience. I thought the next blow would fall on me! Verbal attempts didn't get anywhere, I had to move in and physically separate the boys."

"Why the fight? One boy said another had taken his seat."

Unsatisfactory Scheduling. "The thing I'd most like to see changed in the Middle School is the music scheduling. At 10:30, four kids would get up in the middle of class and say, 'We have band now' and walk out. You had to let them go, because if you didn't, the band teacher would come and get them."

"One kid, in two different music groups and with music lessons - wasn't in class three times in one week!" And in French, this is hard to make up because some work has to be done in school, with the language tapes.

"Why not have music before or after school?"

"My relationship to the kids ... I never thought I'd be one of those teachers who says primly, 'If something is so funny back there in the corner I'm sure we'd all like to know what it is.' But I did say just that! Or, 'You didn't expect to get away with that, did you? I was in eighth grade once, you know.'"

"And one day, when it was really impossible, I yelled, 'THERE IS GOING TO BE QUIET IN THIS ROOM!' and I was horrified! Was I really acting that way?"

Simple Arithmetic. "One boy asked if I was Mrs. Shapiro or Miss Shapiro and I said I wasn't married. He asked how old I was, and I said 21, and he said, 'Anybody as old as you are has to be married,' and then one kid said, 'Hey, you're only seven years older than we are!'"

"I think I got through to a few kids. A problem boy, belligerent, always ready for a fight. A letter went home to his parents at reporting time. I thought it would be a good idea because it would force the kid to talk with me about his behavior. Well, his mother later wrote that she had seen a change in him. And so did I."

"The boy said he did understand, and had talked over the problem with his parents. He began to notice that other boys in the class were the way he had been - always spoiling for a fight. 'How could you put up with me!' he asked me, and he said 'I want to stay good.' This boy had a lot of respect for the Middle School teacher I was working with."

Ms. Shapiro's supervising teachers were Janet Stellenwerf (English) and Tink Lessing (French).

"I went into practice teaching expecting not to like it, but I came out liking it. It was a positive experience, definitely."

"I wrote my mother a letter about it, and I asked her, 'Was SUPERSWING: If you're as old as kindergarten but no older than fourth grade, you can play on this -- well, space-ship swing? -- built for Princeton Day School's Lower School under the guidance of two PDS sophomores, Don Gips (left) and Rob Olsson. Constructed originally by a PDS senior (class of '73), the structure sagged into disuse because its telephone poles weren't sunk deeply enough. Using guy-wires, replacing quarter-inch bolts with half-inch bolts and starting almost from scratch, the two designer-contractors have made a 66-tire "swing" strong enough to hold 30 Lower Schoolers all at once. (Lower Schoolers are expected to do a paint-and-pennant job after school starts September 8). Tires were donated by Pete and Mike's Mobil station. About $60 worth of bolts and cables were used in the strengthening job. Others on the work crew have been Andy Sanford, Lance Phox, Chris Bundy and Ed Gibson.

A PENNY SAVED...

You know the Rest. With the prospects for state aid to education still very much up in the air, Princeton Regional School administrators spent part of their summer, understandably, looking for ways to cut expenditures. In terms of the school system's annual budget of $8 million, the results were modest, but they were at least steps in the right direction.

If you tried to call an office in the school system this summer you would have encountered directly one cost-cutting measure. School business administrator Ronald Novak reported that the central school switchboard, which transfers incoming calls to the appropriate office, was closed down for nearly two months this summer.

"We lost a little bit of convenience," said Mr. Novak, "but we saved $2,700 in rental charges." People dialing 924-5600, the main number, were automatically connected to the business office, since administrators figured that the greatest number of summer callers would be interested in reaching that office. If the caller wanted another office he or she would be asked to redial any one of 19 individual numbers serving the other school departments.

As a courtesy to long-distance callers, the business office secretary would take the name and number and relay it to the office requested. That office in turn would call the party back.

In looking over the school's summer operations, Mr. Novak took a long look at the inflated air building near Community Park School and at the $500 to $600 worth of electricity needed to keep the structure blown up during the summer months. Figuring that the recreation activities held in the inflatable could be carried on just as well in the open air, Mr. Novak ordered the plug pulled on the electrical blowers. Down went the air building and down -- ever so slightly -- went the school's expenses.

Better Grass. Mr. Novak's office also raised an eyebrow at the annual cost of maintaining the Princeton High School playing fields, chiefly resodding and reseeded.

Figuring you sometimes have to spend money to save money, the school system awarded bids for a sprinkler system that is expected to keep the turf in better health during its months of hard usage. The system's cost: $10,000.

During the summer the school system also laid out $38,000 to purchase the IBM Model 1130 computer that it had been renting for $20,000 a year. This expenditure drew some criticism from a computer engineer attending the June school board meeting. He argued that the system was obsolete.

But the financial managers, looking at the yearly rental figure and the fact that purchase of the machine would be paid for in less than two years, went ahead and bought it.

Like most other school administrators, Mr. Novak received a raise in salary this year -- $2,000 in his case. By summer's end one could say he had repaid that several times over.

EARLY OPENING SET

For Boychoir School. The Columbus Boychoir School will open on Monday, two weeks ahead of schedule. This extra time will be spent entirely on intensive music study to prepare the boys for what Music Director Donald Hanson describes as "our most active year ever."

The choir has a heavy schedule of concerts, beginning with a performance at Radio City with the Radio City Symphony in early October and includes tours to Florida, New England, and the mid-West, climaxing the year with a month-long tour of Europe, starting in mid-June, 1976.

The early opening is marked by the release of a new recording featuring the choir, the first English work of a compilation of nationally colored Hungarian folksongs and dances by the outstanding Hungarian composer, Zoltan Kodaly.

Auditions for entrance to The Columbus Boychoir School for the 1976-77 academic year will be held after September 1. Any boy currently in grades 4 through 6 with interest and ability in the vocal arts is welcome, and parents should contact the school at 924-5858 for information.

The Columbus Boychoir School is an equal-educational opportunity institution. Applicants are admitted without regard to race, color or religious belief.

FALL TERM NEARS

For Adult School. During July's rains and August's dog days members of the Princeton Adult School Board have been planning the fall program for the 1975 ten-week session.

This week the copy for the brochure which will be mailed to area residents went to the printer. Immediately after Labor Day the booklet will be mailed to area residents. Those who wish additional copies of the pamphlet, which gives a brief resume of the courses available, will be able to get an extra copy at the Princeton Public Library.

The first ad to appear in Town Topics will be on September 4 and will list the courses available and time and place of registration. Registration by mail is possible, with course application blanks to be found in the booklet. Space in some classes is limited, and registration will be accepted on a first-come first-served basis.

Registration date has been set for September 18 at Princeton High School, where students will have an opportunity to meet their instructor and to find out additional details about the courses. Classes, which are held at Princeton High School unless otherwise noted in the brochure, are on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, with the first classes scheduled to start on September 30 and October 2.

The Board is continuing the practice of mailing brochures this year. Recession notwithstanding, last year there was an increase in Adult School registration.

Delightful Farce a Happy Ending To Summer Intime's Solid Season
 Summer Intime all but blew the roof off the theater with its latest production, "U.T.B.U. (Unhealthy to Be Unpleasant)." James Kirkwood's wildly funny, delightfully entertaining farce is a super conclusion to a first-rate season.
 UTBU is a far-flung (and far-fetched?) organization of men and women dedicated to the explosive elimination of unpleasant people. New York office manager Madge Kempton (Winnie Holzman) dispatches UTBU's number one agent, the sightless William Uggums, (Joseph Harbeson) to the Manhattan apartment of one-time movie star J. Francis Amber (Eric Zwemer) under the pretense of interviewing him for a humanitarian award. In fact, Uggums is following up a report that J. Francis is a mother-beater, and therefore a prime candidate for one of UTBU's special music boxes, guaranteed to give you a bang.

News Of The THEATRES
 The mother in question, Shirley Amber (Georgine Freedman) is a 94-year-old gal with a different "get-up" for every occasion, and a quick retort for every comment. Only she would play jacks down at the local funeral parlor, do the Charleston in the hallway -- nude -- and order a three-year subscription to Popular Mechanics.
 Other members of the household are J. Francis' 29-year-old niece Anastasia (Kimberly Myers), a stage-struck, awkward bundle of nerves, and Connie Tufford (Shirley Kauffman), hired originally as a companion for dear old Mom, but now finding herself dressed in a frilly maid's costume performing all sorts of nitty gritty chores.

 I See, Said the Blind Man. Uggums enters this weird household hoping for the best, but prepared for the worst. Though blind, he soon "sees" what is really going on. Once he realizes that someone is trying to poison the old lady, tension builds to an explosive climax, with the audience belly-laughing the whole time.
 In the course of events the Ambers are visited by Valerie Rogers (Katherine Stewart), the typical obnoxious stage mother, trying to interest J. Francis in her eight-year-old daughter (Gwendalyn Hanawalt). The child, known as Miss Blank Rogers because she likes the name Jane, which her over-bearing mother rejects out-of-hand as being much too plain for her would-be Sarah Bernhardt, does a basic audition routine that elicits well-deserved rousing applause and laughter from the audience.
 As this long-suffering child does her bit just one more time for Mommy's sake, the stances and facial expressions of all around her attest to the superb training of the Intime players. Each one, without moving a muscle or saying a word, clearly despicts his or her reaction to this grotesque scene.
 The ensemble acting of this well-honed group is evident throughout: Amber deftly snatching a valuable vase as Uggums whirls his cane about wildly, Amber getting his Mommy hooked on cognac, Anastasia taking one pratfall after another into the arms of her new beau (Jim Shankman), and on and on.

Show Stealer. If any one person could be said to steal the show in such a talented group, it would have to be Georgine Freedman. She handles the mannerisms of a 94-year-old with true skill. The glint in her eye, the wry smile across her face, the toothless speech, the hunched shoulders, the shuffling walk, all depict an old woman.
 Old, but very much alive. She prides herself on getting to sevensies in jacks, on never having broken her hip, and on her ability to make her son squirm. Though she can't remember that her daughter is dead, or that she broke a daily ritual by not seeing the Radio City Rockettes that day, she clearly recalls every detail of how J. Francis obtained his Oscar.
 High praise goes to John C. Vennema for his direction of this zany comedy. Well-known to Intime audiences for his fine performances as an actor in recent years, he scores a very real hit with his first attempt as the director of a major production. This is one of those plays in which everyone seems perfectly cast, and yet we know that much of this illusion is a tribute to the director's talent and ability to work with all performers, from leads to walk-ons, in eliciting just the right look, just the right tone of voice, just the right movement.
 And while we're handing out kudos, let's not forget Richard Ferrugio, for another attractive, workable set design; and Ruth Steiner, for her design and execution of a variety of wacky costumes.
 UTBU continues at the Murray Dodge Theatre on the Princeton University campus this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m., and Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Each performance is likely to be sold out at certain time; so call 452-8181 now for reservations. Go and enjoy this sparkling finale to a fine season.

MUSICAL IS READY
 "Fantasticks" This Weekend. Princeton Twilight Theatre will present as its final summer production "The Fantasticks" this Friday and Saturday at 8 at 185 Nassau Street. The internationally-known musical has book and lyrics by Tom Jones and music by Harvey Schmidt and such memorable songs as, "Try to Remember," "Soon It's Gonna Rain" and "They Were You."
 Andrea Haring, who appeared in Twilight Theatre's "The Congresswomen," and Chris Negus, last seen in "How He Lied to Her Husband," play the romantic leads, Luisa and Matt. The part of El Gallo is played by Dan Clohossey. Also appearing in this production are Nick Halpern as Hucklebbe, Ted Heilweil as Bellamy, Richard Carlin as Henry, Jonathan Kuhn as Mortimer and Margy Levine as the mute.

 "Fantasticks" is under the direction of Jane Beard with music provided by Kathy Hilst and Steve Herzog. The set is designed by Chris Negus with lighting by Steve Ludlum and costumes by Anne Hazen. Stage manager is Sarah Rabinowitz. Posters were designed and created by Liz Fischer.

4 IN ONE NIGHT
 From Street Theatre. The final production of the summer for Street Theatre will be a quartet of one-act plays, to be presented this week-end at various locations around town. The plays will be given next week-end, too. See advertisement on page 5B for details.
 On the program are "Death Knocks," by Woody Allen (John Wible directing); "Yes, Dear," by Warren Graves (Debbie Bellow directing); "Constantinople Smith," by Charles Mee Jr. (Jill Kendall and Dina Blanc directing) and "Infancy," by Thornton Wilder (again with Debbie Bellow as director.)

The schedule has the quartet of one-acters opening this Friday at ORC, corner of North Harrison and Terhune Road. They will be performed again this Saturday at Riverside School and this Sunday at Palmer Square. The plays will begin at 8:30, and admission is free. Donations accepted.
 Dina Blanc and Margie Wachtel are the stage managers. Members of the crew are Paul Berkelhammer, (lights and sound); Ali Henderson (props); Dina Blanc (costumes); Katie Grimm (set design); Ed

Pharmacy Footnotes

Dr. Mel Atlas, D.O., Pharm
Someone you know probably has a sit-down job. That means he spends a good part of his day simply sitting at a desk to do his or her job. For those who sit while working, the authorities say that it is important to keep a good sitting posture—and that a desk worker is less tired if he reminds himself from time to time about keeping a good posture. The hip, the knee, and the feet should be at right angles to the trunk of the body. Make sure that the height of the writing desk should be adjusted so that the arms are parallel with the hips and knees.

time is 7:30 p.m. and the admission is $1.25.
"Member of the Wedding," Monday's film, is Stanley Kramer's screen version of the Broadway hit, featuring the original stars: Julie Harris, Brandon de Wilde and Ethel Waters.
"Rebecca," Tuesday's classic, finds Joan Fontaine, Laurence Olivier (pre-knighthood) and Judith Anderson in Daphne duMaurier's thriller about the secret of a first wife.
"The Blue Angel," scheduled for Wednesday, is the film that made Marlene Dietrich an international star. The story is the destruction of a middle-aged professor by his infatuation with a heartless cafe singer.

AWARD GIVEN
To Creative Theatre. A grant from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts will finance Creative Theatre Unlimited in the presentation of children's plays in areas of the state where there are few cultural opportunities. The award, for C.T.U.'s Children's Theatre Troupe, was announced this week.

The troupe is a new enterprise, just completing its first summer season. Two productions directed by Amie Brockway — "You, Alice and Me" and "If You've Seen One Dragon..." — have been presented in East Windsor, Englishtown, Twin Rivers, Hightstown, Trenton and Hamilton Township, in addition to performances in Princeton.

The plays were given in community centers, in schools with Title I programs, for recreation programs and at the Open Air Theatre in Washington Crossing State Park. This fall, "If You've Seen One Dragon..." will be given in Cranbury, Piscataway, Lawrenceville and Princeton.

Creative Theatre Unlimited started the Children's Theatre Troupe to give children a chance to experience live theatre. Scripts are adapted from children's stories, folktales or classics. The Troupe uses many theatre styles, including plays without script and audience participation plays in which children are invited to respond freely and openly to the actors.

Whenever possible, the Troupe uses actors of all ages. Mrs. Brockway believes this multi-age approach gives both adults and children an unusual theatre experience.

Plans are now under way for a fall and a spring production, and for script contest with a Bicentennial theme.

NEW SEASON PLANNED
By N.J. Symphony Orchestra. Mrs. Gavin Hildick-Smith, President of the newly-formed New Jersey Symphony Orchestra League Princeton Chapter, has announced details of the orchestra's 1975-76 concert season in Princeton. To be given on two Sundays at 3 and one Friday evening at 8:30 at McCarter Theatre, performances have been scheduled for December 19, January 18 and April 11.

Henry Lewis, the Orchestra's Music Director, will conduct the first two, while Sixten Ehrling, former Music Director of the Detroit Symphony, will guest conduct the April concert. According to Mrs. Hildick-Smith, the Princeton Chapter volunteers expect to duplicate the success of the Symphony's last season in Princeton, which sold out.

Masterpieces of two different centuries will be highlighted for the December 19 concert when Mr. Lewis leads the orchestra in an all-orchestral program. Heard will be Ludwig van Beethoven's Symphony No. 6, subtitled "The Pastoral" because of its various symphonic pictures of life in the peaceful countryside of the composer's imagination. Princeton audiences will also be treated to the Smyphony's first performance of the Hungarian Bela Bartok's "Concerto for Orchestra," the great opus of that composer's twilight years.

Mayumi Fujikawa, the young 1970 Tchaikovsky Competition Silver Medal winner, will be heard on January 18. Miss Fujikawa will be performing her interpretation of Alexander Glazounov's "Violin Concerto." The program will also include Robert Schumann's "Fourth Symphony" and a new composition by a New Jersey composer.

Guest Conductor Sixten Ehrling will take over the orchestra on April 11 for an all-orchestral program. This will consist of Beethoven's "Symphony No. 8," the Bacchus and Arian Suite of the contemporary French composer Albert Roussel, and Shostakovich's historic "Symphony No. 5."

Subscriptions to the concert series are now being offered at a 33.3 discount from regular box office prices. For complete information call (201) 624-8203 or write the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra, 150 Halsey Street, Newark, N.J. 07172. Season ticket prices are $15 and $13, depending on seat location.

Here's an interesting baseball quiz... See if you can name the men who played the most games at each position in major league history... Some of the answers are surprising... (1B) Jake Beckley... (2B) Eddie Collins... (SS) Luis Aparicio... (3B) Brooks Robinson... (Outfield) Ty Cobb, Hank Aaron and Willie Mays... (C) Al Lopez... (P) Hoyt Wilhelm.

A national sports service recently did a survey and reports that the Houston Astros have traded away more stars than any other team in recent years... The Astros have traded away an amazing number of stars— Jim Wynn, Mike Marshall, Nate Colbert, Mike Cuellar, Rusty Staub, John Mayberry, Jack Billingham, Dave Giusti, Cesar Geronimo, Jerry Reuss and Joe Morgan!

One of the strangest records of all-time in golf was established by a man named Sam Parks... He won the U.S. Open in 1935—but he had never won any major tournament before that, and he never won a major tournament after that!

Tiger Eleven Should Top Columbia, Colgate, Cornell in 1975; Brown, Harvard, Yale Loom as Toughest Opponents in Ivy Race

HAPPY ENDING: When Aaron Satterthwaite ran an intercepted Cornell pass back 27 yards for a touchdown last fall, it marked the first such Princeton score in eight years. Tigers' 41-20 triumph over the Red in final game left them waiting eagerly for start of the 1975 season. (Bob Matthews Photo)

To achieve its goal of improving on last year's .500 mark (4-4-1) and to return to the role of contender in the Ivy race, Princeton's football team must repeat its 1974 triumphs and add at least two more victories to its record. A look at the pre-season ratings of the nine teams the Tigers will face indicates chances for further improvement are good, partially because they themselves will be stronger and also to a degree because some of their opponents will not.

Foremost among the latter should be Pennsylvania, which has dominated the Orange and Black for the past three seasons -- first such string for the Quakers over Princeton in better than a quarter century. Early odds are that the differential in ability this fall will be more than enough to enable the Tigers to overcome the two-point difference (20-18) which separated the teams last October at Franklin Field.

Big Three Rivalry Big. The two most difficult games on the Princeton schedule will be played on the second and third Saturdays in November -- against Harvard at Cambridge and Yale in Palmer Stadium. The Crimson must replace Milt "The Pineapple" Holt, the fine left-handed quarterback, and the all-American end, 6-6, Pat McNally, who had such a big part in beating them last fall, as always, there is much other good material at Cambridge. Harvard will be good defensively again -- if Coach Joe Restic can rebuild his somewhat intricate offense, Harvard will be difficult for everybody to beat.

Brown Moves Up. If there has been a major change in the makeup of the Ivy League in the past two or three seasons, it is the emergence of Brown as a title contender. Under Coach John Anderson, the Bruins last fall achieved their first back-to-back finish in first division since Ivy football went formal nearly two decades ago.

Having won their last four in a row and blessed with the return of 18 of their 22 regulars, the Rhode Islanders are being picked in some quarters to win the 1975 Ivy crown. The key quarterback position may prove of some

SPORTS In Princeton

Penn is, however, the only one of the four teams to which the Tigers lost in 1974 which appears likely to slip this season. The Quakers may improve slightly on defense, where they have almost invariably been weak, but their scoring punch seems likely to suffer.

The outgoing senior class took with it Marty Vaughn, the fine quarterback, and two top ball carriers in Bob Bucola and the elusive Adolph "Beep" Bellizeare. Penn's ability to recruit well in many fields has not stood up in football in the past two or three seasons, and it may be a while before the Quakers finish in first division again.

Graduation was hard on Yale, which has lost eight of its 11 offensive starters, but Carmen Cozza has the defensive personnel to hold Eli opponents in check while the attack is being reconditioned. The Blue has steadily maintained a high place in football standings for the past seven years, despite the fact trouble, but they figure to give every opponent on their schedule a tough, physical battle, and their place on the Princeton schedule -- immediately before Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth -- will give the Tigers their toughest second half season in many years.

Of the teams it defeated last fall, Dartmouth will be the most difficult for Princeton to trim again. The Green's position on the Tiger schedule will work for it -- if the Orange and Black runs into a rash of defeats in its games with Brown, Harvard and Yale, it could be very difficult to salvage anything against the victory-minded Indians. Overall, Dartmouth does not figure to do much better than gain a toe-hold in first division, because the extreme wealth of material in other years is currently lacking at Hanover, but unless the Tigers go into the game with considerable momentum, they could be in trouble.

Cornell, a three-touchdown victim of Princeton's in the final game last year, is rebuilding under a new coach, George Seifert from Stanford. Considerable depth, good size and some capable running backs are at hand, but the lack of an established quarterback and first-year organizational problems may be hard to overcome, especially in the third game of the season at Ithaca.

Columbia and Colgate, which Princeton handled with relative ease last fall, are the two opponents the Tigers are most likely to defeat again. The Lions will benefit from a

Patron Tickets Offered

The New Jersey Jaycees have begun public sale of a limited number of Patron Tickets for the game at Palmer Stadium between the Giants and the Steelers.

The tickets, being sold on a first-come, first-served basis, are for mid-field seats on the shaded side of the stadium and at $30 apiece also provide free nearby parking, buffet lunch before the game, a program and a post-game party with picnic food and refreshments. Players from both teams along with club officials are expected at the post-game party along with Gov. Brendan Byrne of New Jersey. Fans can purchase the Patron Tickets at the Jaycee Football Classic Office, P.O. Box 1975, Hightstown, 08520, or by telephone at 609-443-3344.

better-than-average freshman team, but topflight ability and depth, perennial shortcomings on Morningside Heights, appear to be lacking again. Colgate has offensive bite in the passing and running of quarterback Bruce Basile and the ball-carrying ability of Pat Healy, but the Raiders never seem able to field an adequate defense.

Rutgers, which Princeton might well have beaten last September had not its fans torn down both sets of goal posts before the game ended, will again pose a major problem as the season's first opponent. Quarterback Bert Kosup leads a strong array of returning lettermen who give the Scarlet experience virtually everywhere.

The game will be a true measurement of Princeton's potential for the 1975 season: if the Tigers win their opener, they should have the ability to take a clear majority of their remaining games and even to make a strong run for the Ivy title.

WHAT'S GOING ON?

Giants 2-0, Steelers 0-2. Will the New York Giants run over the Super Bowl Champion Pittsburgh Steelers when they meet in Palmer Stadium a week from Saturday?

Even the most optimistic Giant fan isn't counting on it, but off the performances of the two teams in their first pair of NFL exhibition games, the contest shapes up as a more even affair than might have first been expected. Surprisingly, the New Yorkers, who failed to win more than two of their 14 regular games last season, are unbeaten a third of the way through the exhibition season; almost as unexpectedly, the Steelers have yet to win.

In their opener at Schafer Stadium, Foxboro, Mass., the Giants outplayed New England, coming from behind to achieve a convincing 28-14 victory. Although the Patriots used more reserves than did Coach Bill Arnsparger, who was intent on achieving a winning spirit, the New York triumph was a solid performance. A week later, New England made it look more so by whipping the Minnesota Vikings, 36 to 10.

Journeying to California for their second game, the Giants handled the San Diego Chargers with relative ease, running up 17 points while holding the losers scoreless in the first half and then settling for a 17-7 decision. Quarterback Craig Morton, obtained toward the end of the 1974 season from the Dallas Cowboys, is giving the Giants the kind of leadership they have not known in the current decade. In two games, he is 22 for 33, 199 yards and three touchdowns.

A Princeton alumnus who is carving a National Football League career for himself after having failed to cause much of a ripple at the Ivy League level will in all probability see action for the Giants. Karl Chandler, a tackle when he was here but used by the New Yorkers as either a center or a guard, may play in a reserve capacity.

Expectations are high that the Steelers will again qualify for the playoffs and possibly earn a shot at defending the Super Bowl title they won last year from Minnesota. They have used the early exhibition games to take a look at new personnel and will begin to play for keeps shortly--very possibly in Palmer Stadium on August 30.

In their exhibition opener, they were upset by the Philadelphia Eagles, 17 to 14, as reserve quarterback Jim Gilliam failed to move the team after taking over for Terry Bradshaw. Sunday afternoon, they led Oakland by seven in the third quarter but succumbed to a last-quarter field goal by Methuselah, whose program name is George Blanda. It was a 24-21 final.

Tickets for the game here, priced at $12 for seats between the goal lines and $6 elsewhere, may be purchased through John Baker, 921-6100 from 9 to 5, 799-1865 evenings and weekends. Ticketron outlets also have them, as does Carduner's Liquor Store, Routes 571 and 130, Hightstown.

SCHEDULES LISTED

By PHS, West Windsor. The Princeton High School football team will play eight games this fall and West Windsor nine, according to schedules released by the two schools. The Little Tigers of PHS and the West Windsor Pirates will meet for the first time on the gridiron on October 25.

PHS, 4-5 last year under coach Jim Beachell, will open its season September 27 at home against Hamilton. The rest of the schedule: Oct. 4, Ewing, away; 11, Lawrence; 18, Hightstown, away; 25, West Windsor, away; Nov. 1, St. Anthony; 8, Steinert; and 15, Notre Dame, away. Trenton and Bristol have been dropped from the schedule.

IVY INN WINS AGAIN

Is Adult Softball Champion. Scoring two runs in the second and four in the fifth, Ivy Inn defeated Conte's Monday night, 6-1, to sweep the best of five series for the championship of the Princeton Adult Softball League.

The win was the 21st in a row for the overpowering Ivy, which finished with a 25-1 record — best in the history of the Adult Softball League. The Green's only loss was in its fourth game of the season to Conte's.

Once again it was the hitting of Tony Boccanfuso and George McVaugh that powered Ivy past Conte's in the final game. Tony Pirone, Ivy's fine pitcher, got the win and after the final out the jubilant Big Green attacked the waiting champagne. Making it all possible had been victories in the first two contests with Conte's by lopsided scores of 17-2 and 10-1.

In the first game, Ivy banged out 23 hits. Tony Boccanfuso and George McVaugh had four hits each, while Conte's Luciano Rossi reached base three times. The second contest saw Boccanfuso again go 4-for-4 while Luciano Rossi had three hits.

The semi-final round matched Ivy against Kingston Wine and Liquor, and Conte's against Center Sports.

Ivy defeated Kingston two straight, 7-4 and 11-4. McVaugh had a 3-for-3 night in the opening game, while Bob Ellis homered for Kingston. The second game was highlighted by Rich Volz's homerun for Ivy. Ellis reached base three times for the losers.

Center Sports defeated Conte's in its opening contest 9-8, as Jack Petrone had three hits. Conte's, however, came back to win the next two games. Jerry Perpetua's two-run single gave Conte's a 2-1 decision in the second game and Conte's then scored an 8-1 win in the deciding contest. Wayne Johnson and John Ritter both reached base three times for the winners.

PRINCETON VICTOR Over Hamilton PAL. The Princeton PBA team of the Mercer County Senior Babe Ruth League finished its first season in the league in much the same way they began it. Compiling an impressive 14-3-3 regular season record — the best in either division of the league — Princeton PBA wasted no time in defeating Hamilton PAL for the championship. Princeton won the first two games of the playoff series to capture the championship.

In the first contest, Princeton PBA pitcher Mike Boonin threw a 2-0 shutout. Boonin gave up only two hits and allowed just five runners aboard. He also struck out seven and kept himself out of trouble, as Hamilton could only get two as far as third base.

The Princeton offense suffered in the first inning when Paul Soderman, tied for the team lead in batting with a .333 average, collided with right-fielder Eric Jahn on a short fly ball. Jahn held on to make the catch, but Soderman was lost for the series with a leg injury.

Princeton broke a scoreless duel between Boonin and Hamilton starter Ed Riley in the third when Dave Robinson led off the inning with a single and came home on another single by Scott Thompson. Thompson accounted for the game's only other run when he scored from first on Dave Walker's single after being hit by a pitch.

Princeton completed a sweep of the series when it defeated Hamilton for the second time, 8-4. Dave Robinson tripled to deep center field to lead off the game and scored on a sacrifice fly by Scott Thompson. It never lost its early lead.

Two more runs scored in the third as Princeton took advantage two walks, three stolen bases and Walker's single.

In the next inning, Princeton combined five Hamilton errors and three hits to take a 7-0 lead. The big blow was Walker's triple.

Hamilton struck back in the same inning for all four of its runs. Following two Princeton errors, Hamilton touched Princeton starter Dana Nini for three of its five hits. John Madden finished up on the

Registration Scheduled
Registration for the 1975 Princeton Midget Football League season will be held on Wednesday and Thursday, September 3 and 4, at the Valley Road School gymnasium from 6:30 until 8:30 both evenings.
All boys between 9 and 13 who live in or attend school in Princeton are eligible to participate in this contact football program. In order to do so, boys must appear for registration and weigh-in at the gymnasium either evening. For more information, call League Vice-President Mike Lion at 934-0503.

ground for Princeton.
Princeton added a final insurance run in the sixth on hits by Robinson and Walker, their third each of the game, and a single by Thompson.

ETS REGIONAL WINNER
In Softball. Educational Testing Service of the Princeton Industrial League, a two-time New Jersey state champion, won the Region Eight Industrial Slow Pitch Softball Tournament held in Utica, N.Y. last week with three straight victories.

As a result, ETS earned the right to compete in the World Series Industrial Softball Tournament which will be held in York, Pa.

At Utica, ETS defeated New York Department of Transportation, 11-5, and Remington Arms of Utica twice, 10-3 and 15-4. ETS pitcher Clarence "Bones" Gilbert was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Ed Willis, Jerry Murphy, Rich LiMato and George Salina led ETS in hitting, while Pete Simonelli, with two unassisted double plays, starred on defense.

BROTHER TOPS BROTHER In Tennis Tournament. A family duel in the boys' 16 and under division in the summer tennis tournament sponsored by the Princeton Recreation Department has resulted in an upset.

Allen Aronovic, seeded third, last week defeated his brother Dan, seeded number one, 6-4, 6-4. Their sister, Diane, lost only two games on her way to the finals of the girls' 12 division, where she defeated Pierrette Newman, 6-0, 6-2, to clinch the championship.

In the finals of the boys' 14 division, undefeated Freddy Figueroa defeated Jim Parmele, 6-3, 6-4. Mark Goodman topped Greg Rossi, 7-6, 6-3, in the finals of the boys 12 and under division.

Karen Clark won the girls 16 title by defeating Holly Light, 6-1, 6-1.

SWIMMERS ARE 13TH in Eastern Championships. Princeton Aquatic Association senior swimmers placed 13th in the Eastern Championships held this month at Lancaster, Pa.

Lisa Van Pelt posted a qualifying time of 2:27.7 in the 200 backstroke for the National AAU Championships. She was scheduled to compete in Kansas City this Wednesday.

A team of Gary Plantier, Jim Bolster, Beaver O'Hara and Andy Bolster set a boys' medley relay record of 4:05.9 in the Eastern Championships. Those who reached the finals at Lancaster were Plantier and O'Hara, who were each in three events; Van Pelt, who was in two, and Martha Kinney and Andy Bolster who were each in one event.

The Princeton Squalic Association was founded two years ago by Bill Farley, Princeton University swimming coach and an Olympic swimmer.

PRINCETON VS. HOPEWELL OPPONENT In Final Exchange Match. Young tennis players from Hopewell Valley Country Club visited the Princeton University courts last week for the final exchange match of the Community Tennis Program summer session.

LAPIDUS WINS TWICE in Tennis Tournament. Princeton's Jay Lapidus swept the boys' 16 singles and the boys' 18 doubles tennis championships held last week at the Philmont Tennis Club in Philadelphia.

Seeded number one in a field of 128 in the boys 16, Lapidus lost only eight games on his way to the title. In the finals he defeated nationally-ranked Hank Kushma from the Eastern Lawn Tennis Association, 6-0, 6-0.

Jay then combined with Murray Robinson of Philadelphia to win the boys' 18 doubles. They won the championship match, 6-2, 6-3.

A Hole in "Zero"
"Jack Sweeney set me up for it," Dick Bradley said. "He told me, 'You're the only one who can make a zero on this hole.'"

"We were playing full handicaps, so I got a stroke on the hole. My seven iron shot landed about three inches beyond the cup and the ball rolled back in."

Bradley made a hole in one on the 128-yard 15th at Springdale last week, his first in a long golfing career. Rounding out the foursome were Fred Short and Jack Petrone.

outstanding track teams at C.W. Post and Baruch College during the past eight years, has been named assistant coach of track and field at Princeton University.

Chernock took over at Post in 1967 following a brilliant nine-year career at Oceanside High School where his teams showed an incredible 105-3 dual meet record. At Post he inherited a program that barely maintained a club team set-up. However in the next six years he directed the Pioneers to a pair of Metropolitan championships and 13 indoor, outdoor and cross country conference titles.

Chernock graduated from N.Y.U. in 1950 with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Physical Education and received his Masters in Education from N.Y.U. in 1950.
